

CHINESE REQUEST TO ABROGATE JAP TREATIES PROVIDES NEW CONTROVERSY IN FAR EAST MEET

Five Homes Destroyed and Nine Damaged in Fire

WEST END SUFFERS HEAVY FIRE LOSS; ORIGIN UNKNOWN

GREAT CROWD GATHERS TO SEE CONFLAGRATION

Chief of Police Beavers Heads Detachment of Officers to Keep People Under Control.

Not since that fateful week in May, 1917, when the most appalling conflagration in the history of Atlanta ravaged block after block on the north side, sweeping everything before it and devastating property valued at millions of dollars, has such a stir been created in the city over a fire as was witnessed shortly before 3 o'clock Wednesday, when reports spread over Atlanta that the entire West End was in flames.

Rumors were circulated, magnified and spread with startling rapidity. As the exaggerations increased and reports of an immense conflagration were augmented by hundreds of tongues, literally thousands flocked westward toward that section of West End just off of the corner of Lucile avenue and Lawton street, where at 2:45 o'clock fire, which originated in the home of Mrs. Clara Robbins, at 160 Lucile avenue, consumed the structure and, fanned by a brisk wind, spread to adjoining homes.

Five Houses Destroyed.

Five houses were swept to the ground, five others badly damaged about the roofs and four slightly damaged. For nearly two hours the fire raged, and because of the rapidity with which the flames spread, Fire Chief Cody turned in a general alarm and every available department within the city limits responded to the call.

Beginning about 2:45 o'clock, it was after 4 o'clock before the flames were under control. Chief Cody estimated the total damage at approximately $45,000.

The houses destroyed were:

- Homes of Mrs. H. J. Cooper, 150 Lucile avenue; Mrs. Forrest Parker, 164 Lucile; Mrs. A. W. Fickett, 158 Lucile; C. R. Hammond, 162 Lucile; Mrs. Clara Robbins, 160 Lucile.

Those suffering damage were:

- Homes of Mrs. M. L. Grist, 146 Lucile; Mrs. J. L. Peck, 142 Lucile; John Burch, 138 Lucile; Oscar Bagland, 132 Lucile; Mrs. Esther Pierce, 170 Lucile; G. E. Blake, 143 Lucile; L. A. Hollingsworth, 88 Calhoun; G. W. Brownlee, 84 Calhoun, and Mrs. Brannon, 147 Lucile.

Chief of Police James L. Beavers personally went to the scene with a detachment of officers, and was forced to establish "fire lines" in order to keep the throng back of the actual area of operations of the firemen.

Many Homes Threatened.

Damage to several of the homes less seriously burned was caused by flames streaming upon the blaze. Quits of flames darting through windows seriously threatened other homes but prompt work by the fire fighters checked them before any bad way would be gained.

The fire spread eastward, fanned by the wind. Had the breeze been of higher velocity it is estimated that the fire would have spread to the eastward, where it would have been a great deal more difficult to control.

When firemen arrived at the scene, the flames were under control, as flames were directed toward the street. The homes in the path of the flames were saved.

ONE KILLED, TEN HURT IN CHICAGO TROLLEY CRASH

Chicago, December 14.—One man was killed and ten others injured when two suburban trains of the Illinois Central railroad crashed at the Thirtieth street station during the rush hour Wednesday night. Five are reported seriously injured. Of the seriously injured, it is said two may die.

The wreck occurred as the first car of a southbound train became uncoupled from the engine and the sudden stoppage of the air brakes caused a truck to buckle, throwing the coach directly in the path of an oncoming express train.

HOLDUP AND THEFT EPIDEMIC HOLDING ATLANTA IN GRIP

One or More Highway Cases Reported to Police Department Every Night for Several Weeks

SCORE OF BURGLARIES WEDNESDAY'S RECORD

Police Seem Unable to Cope With Situation Unless More Men Are Employed as Patrolmen.

That a holdup and burglary epidemic is holding Atlanta in its grip was made evident Wednesday night when more than twenty holdups were reported to the police, coming from all sections of the city.

Police officers have been reported to be unable to cope with the situation, they say, if an inadequate force for patrolling and officers claim they will not be able to make any real progress in this direction until funds are granted for the employment of additional men.

Wednesday Busy Day.

Wednesday proved to be another busy day for sneak thieves and burglars in all parts of the city.

B. Z. Merdian, of 61 Calhoun, reported that burglars entered his home and stole a quantity of valuable jewelry consisting of rings, a brooch, a lavalliere, a watch and other articles valued at several hundred dollars.

H. L. Perry, room 603, county courthouse, reported that a motorcycle, tools and a flashlight were stolen from the room.

The home of V. G. Payne, 59 Prince avenue, was entered during the afternoon by burglars who secured some articles of clothing, and some war savings stamps.

W. L. Harvey, 22 East Boulevard street, Kennesaw, reported that his home had been burglarized.

W. E. Johnson reported to police headquarters that some articles of clothing had been stolen from his home.

The room of Grant Allen, 304 Atlanta Journal building, was entered by thieves, as reported.

Y. Y. Brown, Jr., of 90 Crescent avenue, reported that his home had been entered by burglars during the day.

L. L. Hattaway, of 120 Marietta street, reported to police that his home had been broken into.

BATTLE OF WORDS CLOSES IN DELAY ON IRISH TREATY

Dail Eireann Will Convene Thursday to Ratify or Reject the Offer of Dominion Status.

GRIFFITH'S SIDE WINS ASCENDANCY

Estimated Vote 70 to 47 for Ratification—George Gives Pact to British Parliament.

Dublin, December 14.—Exhausted from a battle of words and phrases, bitter recriminations, and angry charges hurled back and forth over the floor of the dail eireann, the Irish parliament adjourned its first session at 9:30 o'clock in the evening, to reconvene Thursday, again in secret session, and take up the fight between Eamon de Valera and Arthur Griffith on the peace treaty where it ended. A public session will be held Friday, it was announced to the crowds doggedly waiting outside the building in the pouring rain.

The discussion became more moderate in tone as the hours passed, but the leaders of the Irish die-hards continued the fight to speak at intervals, continuing to interrupt his political opponent. Frequent scattering applause was heard now and then as he penetrated through the doors of the council chamber.

Members of the dail eireann, tired of the long debate, occasionally emerged from the conflict. They indicated that with a slackening in the bitterness, the members are growing increasingly impatient that there will be a peaceful termination of the dispute. The arguments of Griffith and Michael Collins have apparently won an ascendancy, possibly as a result of deep consideration of De Valera's own position, which summed up, is proved to be little more than that he was not consulted before the treaty was signed, and, therefore, the treaty should be rejected.

Battle on One Point.

The day-long battle raged practically solely around this one point—what were the delegates' powers, and did they exceed them?

A decision, it became apparent early in the evening, would be impossible to attain without another session, and after two hours of futile discussion, an adjournment was called for.

Towards the close of the evening

$54 Will Bring Happiness For Year to Aged Woman

Christmas Opportunity Offered Atlantans

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

All day long her needle clicks—sometimes far into the night. Her fingers are very worn, her frame is very weak, her years are many, but her spirit is indomitable. That spirit keeps the needle driving—that spirit and the thought that she must work to produce bread and keep a roof over her head.

She's alone, is Opportunity No. 2, that the Associated Charities of Atlanta is offering through The Constitution to the people of Atlanta. The opportunity is there for some citizen or citizens to insure for themselves a mighty happy Christmas and to insure for this brave old lady shelter and warmth for a whole year.

And all she needs is $4.50 contributed regularly to her support each month. She can do the rest.

Only $54 Needed.

Four dollars and a half a month; $54 for the whole of the coming year. That's all, and it means comfort and peace to this old lady, and heaven knows that it means to those who aid her. I've heard promise of stars in crowns somewhere.

A cheerful old soul she is; cheerful despite years and years of the battering of adversity fortune. She takes her up and down with a smile and she smiles despite the fact that her life has been mostly down.

Neither child nor child has Opportunity No. 2. "All alone," she explains as she sits in the little room for which she pays $4.50 a month, and in which she plies her needle.

Up until a mighty few years ago she didn't have to worry about her loneliness. Love, bless you, no. She could take care of herself for her needle was both a shield and a buck. She made a good living as a seamstress.

Then her eyesight failed and age and hard work took the nimbleness from her fingers.

But she didn't quit. Hardly. There's always work where there is a will, and she had the will to work.

Can Mend Sacks.

She couldn't make clothes for a living now, but she could mend socks. Her fingers could still hold a needle, and as long as she could hold the needle she could work for herself.

You didn't know there is a market for mended socks. Neither did I. Neither did she, but she found it out, and so she gathers sacks and mends them, and she sells them and sometimes she gets as high as 5 cents for a mended sock, and it only takes twenty sacks, mended, to make a dollar.

Sometimes, when the sacks are not badly torn, she can mend as many as eighteen or twenty a day. Oh, yes, there's money in sack mending.

And so she's there in that little room, driving her needle and crooning something that may have been a song a long time ago, and she smiles as she tells her story.

It's easy for her to get enough money out of the sacks to buy what she needs to eat and what she has to wear and some coal and wood for the fireplace every now and then.

But, then, there's that $4.50 a month rent.

Hasn't Had Enough.

That's a problem. Right there are ninety sacks. Sometimes there aren't that many when rent time comes around. Maybe, too, there's an item of medicine that means a whole score of sacks. Maybe she's been extravagant and spent a whole half dollar or something good to eat. She loved good things before her eyesight failed. Since then she doesn't know whether she loses them or not. She hasn't had enough to tell.

But if she had that $4.50 a month rent, her mind would be free from trouble. Maybe she'd have a few times to put by against the rainy day each month. These aren't many months left for her anyway.

That's Opportunity No. 2.

BOARD WILL ASK FUNDS TO IMPROVE ATLANTA'S PARKS

ASK SWIMMING POOL FOR WEST END PARK

Council Probably Will Be Asked for More Money to Increase Salaries of Employees 10 Per Cent.

Atlanta's park board, at a special meeting Wednesday afternoon, adopted a partial budget for 1922 expenditures which will be finished at another early call meeting for presentation at the January meeting of the council finance committee, when the appropriation sheet regulating funds of the various departments is prepared.

The budget approved represented for the most part physical additions and improvements proposed for the different parks and the question of salaries was not reached. The budget total, except for a few items left for further study and a closer estimate of their cost, was $193,082. This year's pay roll is $48,580. The supplies account, including feed for the animals at the zoo and a special extra appropriation for help in the small parks, are yet to be considered.

It is expected that a 10 per cent wage increase for the employees will be asked, and the budget is finally presented to the finance committee will request an appropriation of approximately $250,000.

Reports Are Approved.

The improvement committee, H. F. Garrett, chairman; the zoo committee, A. A. Craig, chairman, and the playgrounds committee, W. W. Waites, chairman, offered reports, which were agreed on by the respective committees after a personal inspection of the parks.

Featuring the budget was the request for $44,402 to finish the cyclorama at Grant park; $10,000 for erection of a woman's rest house; $3,000 to enlarge the bath house by erecting a 50-foot extension at the ends of the present wings; $3,000 to build a foot bridge across the swimming pool; $10,000 for a new greenhouse.

At Piedmont park, repairs to bath houses, $2,000; new roadways and sidewalks, $5,000; maintenance and development of the golf links, $7,000; for starting development of 35 acres

HALF-MILLION DAMAGE CAUSED BY HIGH WATER

Seattle, Wash., December 14.—Western Washington was counting its damages today after four days of floods that resulted in the loss of 13 lives, rendered hundreds temporarily homeless, washed out bridges and cut wire communications in many parts of the state. High waters were receding rapidly and little further trouble was expected, according to reports reaching Seattle.

The property loss was estimated at a half-million dollars.

PLANS FOR ROAD BONDS ARE MADE AT MACON MEET

General Assembly Will Be Asked to Give Voters Opportunity to Pass on Program.

$75,000,000 BONDS ASKED FOR HIGHWAYS

Atlantans Take Prominent Part in Conference Held to Inaugurate Great Campaign.

BY BESSIE KEMPTON.

Constitution Staff Correspondent.

Macon, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—Permanent organization of a statewide association to promote interest in a $75,000,000 bond issue to be used in road construction throughout the state, was effected Wednesday at the city auditorium, when J. B. Daniel, of LaGrange, was elected chairman; Morgan Thompson, of Hawkinsville; J. M. Twitty, of Brunswick; W. C. Safford, of Canon; Mrs. E. A. Thornton, of Atlanta; Mrs. Orville A. Park, of Macon, and Mrs. C. E. Battle, of Columbus, vice presidents.

Through the adoption of a resolution presented by Tom Winn, of Atlanta, the executive committee, composed of a prominent citizen from each congressional district, was empowered to elect a permanent secretary and appoint a committee in each county, which will present the pressing need of a state bond issue next year in order to obtain Georgia's allotment of federal aid funds, which will amount to $2,000,000 annually. The members of the executive committee elected Wednesday are R. J. Kennedy, Statesboro; C. W. Bridges, Danvers; W. A. Bowen, Fitzgerald; Rhodes Browne, Columbus; Paul Etheridge, Atlanta; John T. Moore, Macon; Thomas Boz, Calhoun; Hugh White, Athens; J. M. Johnson, Hiram; A. W. Evans, Sandersville; S. D. Bell, Hazlehurst, and R. F. Burch, Jr., Fitzgerald.

Tom Farmer, secretary of the Coweta county commission, who called the meeting, acted as chairman, until John T. Moore, member of the county

Only Details Hold Up Naval Cut Agreement

All Major Questions in Disarmament Plan Are Whipped Into Shape. Big Three in Accord.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 14.—Great Britain, the United States and Japan were in full accord as to principles tonight on a plan of naval limitation.

All major questions involved have been whipped into shape. Technical details as to one phase alone held back an official announcement.

The plan worked out by Secretary Hughes, Arthur J. Balfour and Admiral Baron Kato, in a series of joint conferences, follows the original American proposal except in one respect. That difference is the agreement that Japan may retain the battleship Mutsu instead of the Settsu; that the United States retain the Colorado and Washington in place of the Delaware and North Dakota, and that Great Britain build the approximate equivalent in capital ships.

Agreement Delayed.

Promulgation of the agreement has been delayed by arranging details as to the British equivalent for the Mutsu. The "big three" are in agreement as to policy. It appears that the British might be settled by providing that she retain two super-Hoodes and scrap three or more old ships in their place to bring relative tonnage in retained ships into approximately the same ratio as originally proposed by Secretary Hughes. That element of the plan was still to be finally decided, however, when the "big three" meeting late today adjourned. Further meetings of the trio are expected. Any formal announcement of complete agreement on the basis of the American "5-5-3" ratio plan must await this last step.

It was emphasized in conference circles that the three conferences are expected to reach full accord and that no technical objection of a minor character would be allowed to stand in the way. In view of this spirit, plainly manifested on all sides an announcement of success by the naval conference was viewed as to be expected at any moment.

Good Relationship.

Should a proposal that Great Britain retain two super-Hoodes of the four she had ordered be advanced and found acceptable, it would be taken in naval circles as evidence of the good relationship that has been established during the conference. The plan is open, it is said, to technical objections since the ships would be of a type not included in the Japanese or American navies. They were planned as reserves for the "composite" type raised off just at the close of the war. They would combine the batteries of battleships with the speed of battle cruisers, but sacrifice something in armor as compared to battleships.

The super-Hoodes, also, would be beyond the replacement limit of 35,000 tons displacement proposed in the American plan. That figure dealt with replacement building, however, and not with ships under construction, each of the three powers having a number of 40,000 tonners in prospect. Since Great Britain has already spent money on the plans and specifications of the ships, it seemed improbable that a proposal for their retention would meet objections in American circles, at least. The attitude of Japan's delegates was not known.

Pacific Fortifications.

Included in the treaty into which the naval limitations agreement is to be worked will be the establishment of a status quo understanding as to naval bases and fortifications in the Pacific. This feature of the plan has already been approved by the "big three."

It means that the United States abandons any thought of creating a naval base at Guam, but excludes from the restrictions to be imposed by treaty Hawaii, islands on the coast of Japan, or those in waters immediately adjacent to Australia or New Zealand. In effect, the naval trio are in agreement that none but purely defensive outposts shall hereafter be erected in the Pacific.

It was this understanding and the willingness of the United States to bind itself not to add to present fortifications or base facilities at Guam which is believed to have cleared the way to a large extent for Japanese acceptance of the "5-5-3" ratio of fleet strength.

To Add 14,000 Tons.

SENATE MUST WAIT FOR PARLEY PART

Harding Will Not Send Quadrilateral Treaty to Solons Until Conference Is Concluded.

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON.

Constitution Bureau.

Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, December 14.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—It is now assumed that President Harding will not send the four-power treaty to the senate for ratification until after the senate parley has adjourned. It is also assumed that another international conference will be held late next spring to discuss the allied and national debt problems, this conference to be held very likely in London or Paris. This announcement, though only semi-official, is in direct line with the forecasts made in The Constitution in the early days of the present international armament conference.

As to the four-power treaty, or "quadrilateral treaty," as Secretary Hughes denominated it, being held out by the senate until the conference adjournment, the idea of the president seemed to be that the interim will constitute a national referendum and the senate will therefore be better guided by the voice of public opinion.

It is not considered probable at least that ratification can be indefinitely blocked once it reaches the floor.

National Guard On Way to Coal Fields of Kansas

Action Dispatching Troops Follows Appeals for Protection.

Pittsburg, Kans., December 14.—The coal fields of Kansas, long the scene of industrial turbulence, settled back tonight to await the coming of national guardsmen, ordered in after officials of this county had reported that they were unable to cope with a situation growing out of the storming of mines and mistreatment of non-striking miners by large groups of women strike sympathizers, who for three days have carried on their campaign of terrorism.

The situation in the mining camps was reported quiet tonight, after a lay off of hubbub created by the women marchers, who paraded from mine to mine, threatening workers, and carrying on demonstrations designed to prevent the men from entering the shafts. Although the requesting of troops had been discussed by officials for several days, it was not until early this morning that the action finally was taken. It followed dramatic appeal

DELICATE STAGE ALREADY REACHED IN SHANTUNG TALK

New Request Complicates Situation, As Japanese Delegates Object to Considering Subject.

INFLUENCE SPHERES BROUGHT IN BY CHINA

Nippon Envoys Reluctant to Go Into Validity of Old Pacts—Discussion Friendly.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 14.—With the Shantung negotiations already at a delicate stage, the Chinese delegates threw a new element of controversy into the Far Eastern negotiations today by asking that the treaties resulting from the famous twenty-one demands be abrogated.

The Japanese immediately objected to consideration of the subject and the Far Eastern committee abruptly adjourned. Before another meeting is held all of the national delegations will prepare to give an opinion on whether the Chinese proposal can properly be taken up under the conference agenda.

Meantime all the delegation spokesmen except the Chinese are declining to discuss the subject, and mention of the abrogation proposal was omitted entirely from the official communiqué of today's session.

In the view of the Chinese representatives the subject actually is before the conference and must be discussed and disposed of one way or another.

Asks Specific Declaration.

Further complicating the negotiations, China asked the powers to make a definite and specific declaration abolishing all the claims to "spheres of influence," which have been made under several treaties with China. What disposition would be made of that proposal also was problematical.

Meantime, some of the collateral issues of the Shantung negotiations were advanced, but the principal problem involved in Japanese withdrawal from the Tsing-Tao Tsinan railroad remained as much a stumbling block as ever. Japanese delegates offered, according to the understanding of the Chinese delegates, to relinquish the Japanese claim over the railway on the basis of financial compensation, subject to approval of the Tokyo government. Coupled with this, however, a Chinese delegate said, the Japanese insisted that Japan would have to retain financial interest.

This latter proposal the Chinese replied they were unable to accept.

Reluctant on Treaties.

In connection with China's request concerning the abrogation of the twenty-one demands treaties and the powers claims of spheres of influence

"Ever Ever Green"

By Fannie Hurst

Is a kind of story one doesn't come across often. It's the story of the best stage romances of the "Forty Thieves" show company.

The Fighting Shakespeare, as Caroline Lockhart, is the novel which starts Sunday. There are two outstanding fiction features in The Fighting Shakespeare.

Next Sunday's Conclusion

conference circles thought little could be done. Japan, it was recalled, is reluctant to go into the validity of old treaties.

Discussion at the resumption of the Shantung conversations after the Far Eastern committee had adjourned, centered around the question of compensating Japan should she agree to turn the road back, and a proposal by the Chinese that the road should be restored as quickly as possible, not later than within six months. The Japanese tentatively suggested nine months, but no agreement was reached.

Japanese spokesmen tonight indicated that if the railway problem of Shantung was settled on any other basis than joint operation, the delegation would have to refer such an agreement to Tokyo for approval.

One Japanese spokesman, when asked concerning the Chinese understanding that the Japanese delegates were ready to negotiate on the basis of selling the railway to China, said:

"It is not a question of selling the road. More than that is involved. The discussion today was most friendly. We made better progress than was made yesterday in the matter of understanding the Chinese counter proposals, and I am hopeful of the outcome. Of course there was argument on both sides, but the question was approached in a conciliatory spirit."

"One or two points in the Chinese counter proposal were not reached, but most of the points were cleared up."

The question of possibility of a Japanese loan to finance the Chinese in paying for the road came up at the session, a Chinese delegate said, and the Chinese declared that the people of China had expressed readiness to raise the money in China.

The delegates took the position, he said, that loan could not be forced upon China by the Japanese if she were able to finance the purchase from Chinese sources.

ables" still in evidence in the senate it must not be overlooked that many changes have taken place in the ranks of those who fought so hard for reservations to the old treaty of Versailles. Senator Sherman, of Illinois, for instance, who was an irreconcilable, has been succeeded by Senator McKinley, who will vote to ratify. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, has indicated his disposition to vote eye on ratification. Senator McCumber will be for the treaty. Senator Penrose has not expressed himself, but is classed in the affirmative.

Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, has been succeeded by Senator Harrell, republican. Senator Poinsett, of Washington, has declared for the treaty.

Senator Johnson, of California, is understood to be agreeable to ratification, although no one is authorized to commit him. From New Mexico has come Senator Barsum, who will vote for the treaty, it is said.

Additional Support. Additional support is expected to be created for the treaty after the collateral agreement is presented in proper form and especially if Chinese questions can be settled in a way productive of pronounced satisfaction all around.

It is considered appropriate that the United States should ratify the four-power treaty first of all the nations if that can be done, inasmuch as this government has taken the initiative in the movement out of which has emerged this great work as a collateral issue.

The newspaper correspondents who have been following the conference are pulling for the next conference on financial affairs scheduled for next spring to be held in London.

on the north side of the park, now unimproved, $5,000.

Erection of a swimming pool in Dargan park, West End, was proposed as a part of the new budget, but after brief discussion was referred to Commissioner Craig, of the seventh ward, with instructions to learn the wishes of citizens of the community with respect to the project.

Two New Playgrounds. Two new playgrounds were included, one in the second ward and one in the fifth ward.

New baseball diamonds and ten additional tennis courts distributed in the small parks were provided for. In addition to those already mentioned an approximate list of the items acted on is as follows:

Grant—New barn and tool house, $3,000; slaughter house, $1,500; roadways and sidewalks, $5,000; new building to heat greenhouse, estimate yet to be made.

Piedmont—Purchase of six miles and four wagons, $1,600; baseball and tennis grounds, $5,500.

Adelphi—Completion of sewer in park, building of wading pool, employment of caretaker, $1,800.

Oakland City—New roadways, $15,000; enlargement of bath house, $2,500; paving roadway, $5,500; building walks and purchase of new swings, $5,500.

Howell Park—New roof on rest house and other repairs, $200.

Moseley—New bottom in swimming pool, bath house repairs and new toilets, 100 benches, $5,500.

Maddox—New bottom in swimming pool and bath house repairs, $2,000; baseball grounds, $1,000.

Joiner—Wading pool and repairs to building, $500.

Commissioner D. F. McClatchey requested an appropriation of $200,000 for the undeveloped portion of Piedmont. Part of it is wooded, and he stated that it has become a danger and menace in the community.

The 200 committee recommended a new slaughter house, with refrigerator; new monkey house, 24 by 80 feet, $2,500; outer fence around elk pen, $1,000; cement walk around the pen, $500; raccoon lot, with special wire fence, $1,000; cement walk around llama lot, $720; purchase of additional animals, $1,200; and the repairing of buildings, $1,000.

Highwaymen Busy.

Every night some Atlanta citizen is forced to stand at the point of a gun in the hands of a highwayman, and forced to surrender his hard-earned salary or take a desperate chance by resisting, which is purely suicidal. A highwayman is not surpassed in willingness to shoot, by even a burglar. Rather than be captured or foiled in his purpose, in almost every instance, he will shoot—and shoot to kill.

Never before in the history of Atlanta has there been such a wave of highway robberies, and rather than abating, it seems to be increasing.

There are recognized but two causes: one, the large number of unemployed, and the second, a growing tendency among certain classes to obtain money without working for it. Police officials are of the opinion that highwaymen are really hungry, in most cases, and take the last desperate chance to provide themselves and families with food.

From time to time, Chief of Police James L. Beavers has issued special instructions to men of his department to be particularly on the lookout for such men.

There appears no way to check the practice unless the men be actually caught in the act. This, on the very face of it, would seem physically impossible, since it is shown by actual records that they never strike twice in the same locality and the present police force is hopelessly inadequate to permit of distribution of police throughout all the darkened byways which are so advantageous to a highwayman's purpose.

ONLY DETAILS HOLD UP AGREEMENT

It is said, will add about 14,000 tons to the fleet of existing capital ships she will retain. Substitution of the Colorado and Washington for the North Dakota and Delaware would mean a net gain of 25,200 tons for the American fleet. Addition of two super-Hooda for the British would mean more than 80,000 tons in new ships, but until details of the plans for scrapping older craft in their place are disclosed, the net tonnage gain for the British fleet cannot be estimated.

In this connection it may prove significant that three of the battle cruisers to be retained by Great Britain under the original plan, the Renown, Repulse and Tiger, are regarded in naval circles generally as obsolete in type. They carry no important armor and the battle of Jutland is said to have proved that they could not lie in the line in a fight. The Tiger is a 28,000 tonner, completed in 1911. The other two were war-built to meet German battle cruiser raids against the British coast.

Whether a proposal that two super-Hooda be retained instead of whether some other equivalent basis for their retention has occurred to experts is not known.

France Frames Request. France will ask for an allotment of 315,000 tons of capital ships and proportionate percentages in smaller classes when the question of the French and Italian navies is taken up, possibly tomorrow or Friday, by the recently appointed conference naval committee of fifteen. This was disclosed authoritatively tonight by a spokesman for the French delegation.

The French thesis takes the program adopted by the French parliament in 1912 which had it been completed would have given a fleet of 450,000 tons. The war caused the program to be abandoned. The present requirements of France, it will be represented, are both in the remote Pacific and continental, the defense in Europe covering two naval fronts, the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. Communication with Algeria, it is held by the French, would be of vital importance, in war because of the necessity of transporting troops and supplies from there. These reasons, it is expected, will be developed in detail by Vice Admiral Debon and his TOKIO ACCEPTS NAVAL RATIO. Tokyo, December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Acceptance of the naval ratio of the conference on limitation of armament was announced in a bulletin this morning, ending weeks of speculation and argument in the press and conferences in political circles. The announcement created general satisfaction and gave welcome relief from the tension under which the various elements of the population had been laboring.

There had been apparent for some time a desire on the part of members of the cabinet to see an end to the negotiations and the completion of an agreement along the lines originally proposed at Washington, provided always that Japan's interests were safeguarded. The spirit animating the ministry was voiced by Viscount Uchida, the foreign minister, who in course of a report to the cabinet yesterday, pointed out according to the official organ of the government, "the blind persistence of claiming a seventy ratio, not only is inimical to the spirit of limitation of armament, but is detrimental to the eventual success of the conference."

Kills Her New-Born Babe by Dashing Head Against Floor

Augusta, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—What police describe as one of the most brutal and most unnatural crimes in their annals, occurred early Wednesday morning when Stella Williams, a young white woman residing at 1607 Broad street, took her new-born male babe and dashed its head against the floor by her bed, killing it.

The woman confessed to the crime, according to Chief Grubbs, and stated that she killed the baby because it began to cry. The alleged confession was made to police officers. The woman also stated that the child was illegitimate, and gave the police the name of its father.

Ex-Crown Prince Plans His Return To the Fatherland

Doorn, Holland, December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—The former German crown prince, who, since November, 1918, has lived in Wieringen, is now planning to return to Germany and expects to request permission of the Dutch government for his departure early in the spring.

Frederick William looks forward to life as a country gentleman with his wife and children on an estate at Oelst (Oelsin, Prussia).

Child Puzzled Over Occupations Of Santa Claus

Little Witherspoon, whose chief claim to distinction lays in the fact that at the tender age of five he has a fair working knowledge of Greek and geometry, Wednesday afternoon found himself engaged in beating his way up Whitehall street against the current of humanity that ebbed and surged in the city's greatest tradeway of Christmas shopping.

Puckering his brows in true scholarly style, he called his mother's attention to a gigantic "Santa Claus" clad in a dingy crimson robe, who was frantically shaking a tambourine above the heads of the throng in the interest of the Salvation Army.

"Is that Saint Nicholas, mother?" queried the infant prodigy.

"Yes, Witherspoon dear," was the reply.

A block further a short, fat "Santa" was frantically ringing a bell to attract attention to the needs of the American Rescue workers.

"Is that Santa Claus, also, mother?" the little fellow asked.

A lovely creation of silver brocade covered with black lace displayed in a show window engaged the mind of the woman, and she absent-mindedly answered, "Yes."

Frowning behind his horn-rimmed spectacles, Witherspoon drew his slight frame to its utmost dignified height.

"Then Santa Claus is a very versatile old man, I must say, mother," he solemnly said. "One moment he's tall and thin; then next he's short and fat. First he works for the Salvation Army, then for the American Rescue Workers and in some mysterious manner he is found to be a hundred yards away.

"I am forced by the circumstances, mother, to resort to common slang and to ask you frankly why you pick me for such a fish. In other words, how do you get that way?"

NEGRO WHOSE CAR KILLED W. G. KAY NOW UNDER ARREST

James Hudson, alias Robert Holden, negro, confessed driver of the red automobile which on Halloween night ran over and killed William G. Kay, prominent Atlanta and retired civil engineer, in front of the Peachtree Inn on Peachtree street, has been arrested in Pensacola, Fla., according to information received Wednesday by Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole. The telegram stated that Holden is facing a trial for robbery in the Florida city. Local detectives are determined, if possible, to have the negro returned to Atlanta for trial.

$2,500 DAMAGES ASKED OF TROLLEY COMPANY

The Georgia Railway and Power company was sued for $2,500 damages Wednesday by A. C. Hunter, suing in behalf of his 15-year-old son for injuries alleged to have been sustained by the boy in a collision between an automobile and a street car. The plaintiff is represented by Attorneys Swift, Tyler and Lewis.

POLICEMEN WILL KEEP THEIR JOBS

Mayor Key declined Wednesday, except in the case of three members, to follow the police board's recommendation that fifteen policemen, 60 years old or past that age, be retired on pension.

The mayor refused to recommend retirement for the following: Captain W. F. Terry, aged 62; Sergeant A. D. Luck, 61; Captain J. E. Chandler, 67; Private I. E. Jackson, 61; Sergeant W. P. Reed, 60; Probation Officer S. J. Coogler, 66, and Private G. T. Mann, 62.

Sergeant W. N. Sheridan, 68, and Private J. H. Hooten, 67, were recommended for retirement on their own request, and Private A. C. Kerlin, 61, was recommended on account of physical disability, as shown by the report of Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer.

The mayor, after reviewing their cases, held up his decision until April 1 on the following members of the ranks: G. W. Linam, 65; George Harper, 73; D. F. Cook, 61, and P. M. Born, 60. They will receive an additional service stripe by that time and each man would be entitled by reason of length of service to retirement on half pay instead of the usual pension of $50 a month.

The fifteen men had been ordered by the police board to make application for pension on their own behalf to charges of insubordination. The mayor voiced his opposition at the time and made it known that he would not ask any veteran policeman to retire if the report of the city health officer showed the officer to be physically fit for active service.

GEORGIA CIVITAN CLUBS ORGANIZE AT MEETING HERE

A state organization of the Civitans of Georgia was effected when the local club met with Civitans from five other Georgia cities at the Kimball house Wednesday afternoon. Cities represented were Macon, Columbus, Marietta, Savannah and Dalton.

The organization is designed to promote the work of the clubs throughout the state, and is similar to state organizations of other civic clubs.

Dr. W. Earl Quillian, well-known throughout the city, acted as state chairman pro tem, and C. I. Harris, secretary of the local club, was acting secretary.

CASES PRESENTED FOR THE DISPLAY OF INDIAN RELICS

Emory university will be the recipient of a number of cases for proper display of the rare and valuable collection of Bible land antiques and Indian relics, the donors being the National Show Case company, of Columbus, Ga.

These cases are constructed along Egyptian architectural lines, and are finished in Circassian walnut. They are valued at about $4,000, and are glazed throughout with the best quality of plate glass and fitted with substantial locks and keys.

Dr. Shelton is professor of Old Testament and Hebrew at Emory university, and in speaking of the gift says: "Hardly a more appropriate gift to Emory university could have been made and we are very thankful for the generosity on the part of the National Show Case company."

"We have and are acquiring a very fine museum, with no place to house it. We have thousands of dollars' worth of precious antiques that are suffering for lack of protection. We have a room in which they can be taken care of for the present, but they cannot be placed until they are in cases."

"We are hoping for a special building soon—some day a friend of education will come along and give us the building that we so much need."

"We are now in touch with the archaeological fields and museum materials are flowing this way. We are, of course, interested principally in the remains of the Bible lands, but Emory expects some day to be second only to the Smithsonian in her collection of Indian relics."

"And why not? We are in the midst of the old Indian camping grounds, and therefore, have opportunities to secure relics of rare value."

SERVICES THURSDAY FOR C. WALKER KEMP

Funeral services for C. Walker Kemp, aged 28, who died in Asheville, N. C., Sunday, will be conducted at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, by Rev. E. R. Lay. Interment will follow at Sandy Springs, Ga., where Atlanta lodge, No. 59, F. and A. M., will be in charge of services at the graveside.

Mr. Kemp was a thirty-second degree Mason, a Shriner, a member of the Capitol lodge of Old Fellows and a Knight Templar. Surviving him are his widow, his mother, Mrs. F. E. Kemp; two sisters, Mrs. Walter Blackwell and Miss Mary Kemp, and four brothers, John T., J. C., W. M. and Robert E. Kemp.

MURDER VERDICT RETURNED IN CASE OF CHAS. NELSON

Mobile, Ala., December 14.—Murder was given as the cause of the death of Charles Nelson, 55, formerly of Columbus, Ga., here today by the coroner following an investigation after the dead body of the man with wounds in the head was found at the bottom of a railroad embankment.

Nelson was last seen alive at his home on Thursday, when he left in an automobile in company with a man that the police have been unable to locate. The body was found at Saraland, a suburb, 11 miles from the city. Relatives at Columbus, Ga., have asked for a thorough investigation into the case.

to Sheriff Milt Gould, of Crawford county, and Judge J. H. Crawford, of the industrial court, by delegations of non-striking miners that they be given protection and be permitted to work.

The non-striking miners, several thousand in number, originally went out on the voluntary strike called in the Kansas district, when Alexander Howat and August Dorchy, former president and vice president of the Kansas district, went to jail for six months for violating the state industrial court law by calling strikes. Later, the Howat administration was deposed by the international union officials, who ordered the striking miners back to work. The women demonstrators are wives and relatives of those miners who have refused to obey the international's edict, and who are supporting the Howat organization. Howat is maintaining a rival administration.

WOMAN IS INDICTED IN DOCTOR'S KILLING

New York, December 14.—Mrs. Lilian Itzen, who yesterday confessed to slaying Dr. Abraham Glickstein in his Brooklyn home Saturday night, fainted twice today after she had been indicted by the Kings county grand jury on a charge of murder in the first degree.

She had to be carried before County Judge Martin. Through counsel she entered a plea of not guilty. Then she was remanded to jail to await trial. Indications were given that the prisoner, who claims she had been wronged by the physician, would set up a defense of insanity. Her counsel has engaged Dr. Edward Hicks, Brooklyn alienist, and District Attorney Lewis notified the court that he would move for appointment of a commission to inquire into the defendant's sanity.

GRECIAN ORCHESTRA WILL GIVE CONCERT

The Grecian Mandolin orchestra, composed of a number of members of Atlanta's Greek colony, will offer a splendid program of music at Coble hall on Friday, December 16. In addition to selection by the orchestra, under the direction of A. Ladias, the program will include song and dance numbers.

Society

English Avenue School To Give Entertainment.

Social interest in Western Heights is centered on the beautiful program that is to be given Friday, December 16, in the auditorium of the English Avenue school, under the auspices of the Froebel club, at 7:30 o'clock. The proceeds will go towards helping the poor during Christmas.

Miss Louise Bentley, president of the club, wishes those who have names of any needy families to turn them in, as only a small number can be cared for.

Melba Mott and Kathryn Mitchell, two talented little pupils of Miss Willie Henson, will play a C-clef, G-clef, and F-clef.

Atlanta Masonic Club Dance.

A special committee will arrange for the dance to be held at Segado's hall, 16 East Pine street, Saturday evening.

The famous Yaarab patrol is invited to act as a floor committee.

A fine program has been arranged, all Masons holding cards for 1921 are invited.

Pre-Nuptial Parties.

Mrs. J. S. Culver and Miss Cornelia Culver, a bride-elect, entertained informally on Tuesday afternoon at their home on Highland avenue.

Many friends called to extend their good wishes to the bride-elect.

Pot plants and roses were used for decorations in the reception rooms.

The punch bowl over which Mrs. H. J. Evans presided was embedded in holy and mischievous.

Assisting in receiving and entertaining were Mrs. R. F. Watts, of Birmingham Ala.; Mrs. B. I. Dahlberg, of Knoxville, Tenn.; Mrs. J.

Athletic Club Events For Holiday Season.

The house committee of the Atlanta Athletic club announces the following events:

Saturday, December 17, at 8:30 p. m., at the City club, basketball and dance, A. C. va. Clemson.

Saturday, December 24, from 4 to 6 p. m., children's party. Members only.

Monday, December 26, from 8 p. m. to 11 p. m., Christmas dinner-dance. Dinner at 8 p. m.

Saturday, December 31, New Year dinner-dance. Dinner served at 8 p. m.

Supper Meeting Of Catholic Club.

The Catholic Club of Business and Professional Women will hold their supper meeting tonight at the Sacred Heart church bazaar in the Arcade building. This will take the place of the usual supper meeting the last Tuesday in January.

Members are requested to make their reservations through Miss Margaret McDonnell, Hemlock 2475-J. Supper will be 75 cents.

Meeting of Auxiliary Of Hospital.

The December meeting of woman's auxiliary Georgia Baptist hospital will be held Friday, 16th, at the hospital.

This will be a meeting of great importance and interest. All members urged to be present.

War Mothers.

The regular monthly meeting of War Mothers of the Service Star Legion was held December 13 at Edin hall, with a large attendance.

The hall was bright with Christmas wreaths and potted plants.

A very impressive feature of the program was the presentation to the legion of a banner from the war.

The banner was placed by Marshal Foch on the monument at Pershing's Point. They consisted of a bay leaf tied with light red, white and blue ribbons.

The brilliant address on this occasion was made by Dr. Stuchell, whose eloquence, charm of manner, intense patriotism and scholarly attainments, and voice of beauty and power, made him one of the most interesting speakers who has ever appeared before the War Mothers.

His address was "The New American."

"Forget-Me-Not day," the national day for remembering the disabled and unemployed soldiers, will be the 17th of December.

On this day throughout the nation an appeal will be made for these boys, and your generous contribution is desired.

A large sum towards this fund was the spontaneous response by several members of War Mothers in memory of their sons who made the supreme sacrifice.

A delightful contribution to this splendid program was the recitation by Mrs. Wren McGwin, of a poem, "Aunt Jeannine," given in the dainty and bewitching manner characteristic of her work.

Utopian Club Dances.

The Utopian club gave its regular semi-monthly dance in the clubrooms last Wednesday evening and dancing was enjoyed by a large attendance.

The music was furnished by the Southland orchestra.

The next Utopian dance will be given on next Saturday evening from 9 to 12; admittance only by invitation from club members.

The Utopian club will give dances on December 24, December 26, 10 to 12 o'clock, and December 30, 10 p. m. to 5 a. m. Further plans will be announced later.

Dance for Benefit of Old Ladies' Home.

There will be a dance for the benefit of the Old Ladies' home, Thursday evening, December 22, at Garber hall, Peachtree and North avenue, given by the Fraternity Dancing club.

Harry Baisden's orchestra will furnish the music.

Special features will be a demonstration by Gene de Reaves, of Detroit, Mich., in the Frisco dance. Also Miss Betty Atkins, of Atlanta, will assist Mr. de Reaves in the Spanish tango dance.

Luncheon for Sponsors And Chaperons.

A lovely affair of Wednesday was the luncheon at the Capital City club, given for the chaperons and sponsors of the Georgia Tech R. O. T. C.

The beautiful luncheon table, in one of the private dining rooms, was artistically decorated with the Tech colors, yellow and white. Large wicker baskets held yellow and white chrysanthemums, and at intervals were candlesticks holding yellow tapers, alternating with cornucopias filled with mints and bonbons.

After luncheon, the sponsors and chaperons attended the regimental parade at Grant field, at which they were formally presented to their organizations. Later a sale of Christmas seals was held, and an important business meeting.

The honor guests were Mrs. A. L. Pendleton, Jr., Mrs. R. P. Gibson, Mrs. Harry Goodhart, Mrs. Chip Robert, Mrs. Robert W. Davis, Miss Alice Stearns, Miss Corday Rice, Miss Florence Boykin, Miss Alberta Lewis, Miss Emily Davis, Miss Margaret Gresham, Miss Mary Hill Bloodworth, Miss Ruth Rhorer, Miss Martha Perkins, Miss Margaret Parker, Miss Leslie Lawrence, Miss Mary Bardwell, Miss Mildred Fraser, Miss Virginia Turner, Miss Martha McCrean, Miss Cornelia Torrence, Miss Julia Garner, Miss Wilhelmina Perdue, Miss Elizabeth Mann and Miss Wate Palmer.

Miss Berry Honor Guest At Bridge.

Miss Katherine DuBoise entertained at an informal bridge party at her home, on Peachtree road, Wednesday afternoon, in compliment to Miss Constance Berry, a charming bride-elect.

The lovely home was artistically decorated with vases and baskets filled with pink and white roses in effective arrangement. The tea table in the dining room was adorned with a basket of pink roses.

Bridge-Tea Given For Miss Campbell.

Miss Florence Campbell, a bride-elect of this evening, was honor guest at the tea given yesterday afternoon by Miss Maxine Hiles at her home on Piedmont avenue.

Narcissal and red roses, filling vases and baskets, decorated the apartments.

The guests were Misses Campbell, Inez Campbell, Dorothy Coffin, Florence Hufnagle, Annette Pitt, Louise Campbell, Dorothy Grant, Clara Alexander, Mabel Trammell, Marie Donnelly and Harriett Small.

The honor guest was presented with a hand-made card table cover. The top score prize was a set of hand-painted card table numbers.

Miss Hiles was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Gordon Hiles, and Mrs. Henry Franklin and Mrs. M. S. Sterne, of Anneton, Ala.

Miss Campbell Gives Luncheon.

Miss Ernestine Campbell entertained the members of the Debutante club at luncheon at the Piedmont Driving club, Wednesday.

Luncheon was served at 10 o'clock in one of the private dining rooms.

The elegantly appointed table was decorated in the Christmas colors, and covers were placed for Misses Ruth Rhorer, Mary Woolridge, Katherine Hand, of Pelham; Wilhelmina Perdue, Nell Sims, Ruby Walker, Mary Malone, Caroline Shivers, Alice Stearns, Marjorie McMillan, Marion Smith, Jennie Johnson, Christine McEachern and Miss Campbell.

Old-Fashioned Dinner.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Philip's cathedral will give an old-fashioned baked ham dinner at their restaurant, 16 Washington street, Friday, December 16, from 12 to 2:30 o'clock.

Baked ham, cranberry sauce, brown dressing, hot biscuit, tea or coffee; on cake, chocolate sauce. Dinner with dessert, 25 cents. Menus changed daily.

The public is cordially invited.

Every WomanPublic Final Beneficiary Of Christmas Stamp Sale

One of Atlanta's biggest constructive movements—the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis association—will make its annual appeal for support from the public, which is its beneficiary, in a three days' sale of Christmas seals, beginning today.

The public, when it buys stamps—and on every hand will be provided the opportunity today, Friday and Saturday—will be contributing directly to its own health and welfare.

The drop in statistics in tuberculosis is directly traceable to the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis association. Its funds are applied directly to the tubercular cases themselves and to educational propaganda. But the benefit accrues equally to that part of the public which is in full enjoyment of health. The association's protective work is as important as its remedial or its preventive work.

No citizen of Atlanta is safe from the ravages of the white plague as long as a case of it exists, or the conditions continue which foster its spread. The ideal of the Anti-Tuberculosis association is to eradicate the disease entirely. That is the only direction in which safety lies.

The Woman's club is in general charge of the sale of seals. They are being assisted by other civic and with a supply adequate to Christmas packages and all letters, personal or business, from now until Christmas.

Those already expressing their willingness to assist are: Mrs. James Logan, Mrs. Edward H. Barnes, Mrs. George Hope, Miss Lillian Tidwell, Mrs. C. B. Cauthen, Miss Cora Brown, Miss Idelle Kimball, Mrs. E. R. Kirk, Miss Hazel Kirk, Mrs. John C. Sage, Mrs. Bun Wylie, Mrs. William A. Fulton P.-T. A.
Council Meeting Held Wednesday

The regular business meeting of the Fulton County Council of Parent-Teacher associations was held Wednesday afternoon at the Fulton county courthouse. Mrs. Thomas Lewis, chairman of the council, presided.

Miss Shannon, chairman of the committee on health conditions in the various schools, tendered her resignation, and Mrs. Oscar Mills, of the Grove Park school, was appointed to fill her office.

A feature of the meeting was the presentation of the pennant to the Humphill Avenue school, for having the largest attendance of representatives at the meeting.

A "get-together" meeting will be held at the Fulton High school, Wednesday, February 1. No business will come up at that time as the meeting will be strictly a social affair. An interesting program is being arranged.

The officers of the council are: Mrs. Lewis, chairman; Mrs. Homer Wilson, of Bolton, vice chairman; Mrs. A. H. Cleveland, of Peachtree Heights, secretary; Mrs. Brown, of College Park, treasurer.

Dixie Harpist
Is Presented
By Music Club

It was a happy break in the rush of Christmas shopping, to drop in at Eggleston hall yesterday for an hour's enjoyment of very delightful music.

The Music club, at its regular meeting, had provided an extraordinary feature for its members and friends of music generally, a recital by a young southern musician, Bettie Gilmore, exponent of the Italian harp, and the engagement proved a pleasure to ear and eye alike.

The graceful figure of Miss Gilmore, who wore a soft gray crepe gown of simple fashion, was silhouetted with her gold hair against the old gold velvet curtain, and an urn, topped off a bowl of the crimson flowers of Christmastime, was a final detail in an effective tableau.

Miss Gilmore's program was largely by French composers, who seem to know well how to handle the rather rocco demands of this instrument when it is most effective, although they draw frequently from the Spanish for their inspiration in theme and rhythm.

Hasselmanns—presumably the new French conductor at the Metropolitan—had been freely drawn upon for the numbers on the program. There was one charming thing in old troubadour style, the Spanish dance, as ever appropriate to this technique instrument, had joyful expression, and there was much music of piano style which had been effectively transcribed.

Miss Gilmore knows her instrument well, and while she has not the physique, apparently, for very full volume of tone, she has the musical equipment to provide interpretations of real interest. She comes from Birmingham, which has a live interest in music in its most cultural forms.

At Lovely Buffet Supper

The marriage of Miss Theresa Ione Campbell to Lamar Murdaugh, of McKee, Ga., will take place this evening at the home of the bride-elect's parents, on Fourth street.

Wednesday evening Miss Inez Campbell entertained the bridal party following the rehearsal, at a buffet supper at her home.

The house was artistically decorated in smilax, ferns, palms and cut flowers. The lace-covered table in the dining room had for its central decoration a silver vase filled with pink and white carnations. Encircling this were silver candelsticks holding unshaded pink tapers, alternating with silver compotes.

Miss Theresa Campbell was gown in rose panne velvet.

Miss Inez Campbell's gown was of black satin.

Miss Annette Pitts, cousin of the bride-elect, wore a gown of silver cloth.

Mrs. Chester Ryals, an aunt of the bride-elect, wore blue georgette heavily beaded.

Miss Campbell was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Wright Campbell, who was gown in black Canton crepe.

Covers were placed for the members of the bridal party, including Miss Campbell, Misses Clara Alexander, Louise Campbell, Annette Pitt, Dorothy Coffin, Dorothy Dorrough, Nabel Campbell, Inez Campbell, Lamar L. —There may be a happier gift for the house than one of these lamps but it is impossible to think of it off-hand.

—The tired man returning to his home at eventide, the influence of which sanctuary has sustained him during the battling game of business all day long—how much more heartening and provocative of relaxation if the hallway or living room is circumfused with the mellowness of a shaded light! And the chate-laine of the house and her daughters! The ambient air of the room made ruddy and welcome by the silk-filtered glow reveals them in surprising and unsuspected beauty. Those are the things that justify lamps and shades like these!

Polychromed and stippled gold—some of the styles are illustrated—both floor and bridge lamps. The shades are lovely—of exquisite silks in gold, mulberry, blue and champagne, lined in rose and gold—all fine Cheney silks—with heavy fringe.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

The Art of Living in Rented Rooms.

Do you know how to make a rented room look homelike?

A friend of mine who has lived a wandering life for some years, moving from one rented room to another, has reached such perfection in the fine art of living not too desolately in rented rooms that I feel I ought to share her methods with my readers.

Three Things She Carries With Her.

Of course many of you have never lived in rented rooms and never expect to, but one can never tell what one may be called upon to do. And thousands of young people in every city must be living away from home in rented rooms.

My friend moves often so that it is not possible for her to carry many bulky accessories. Of course anyone can make a room look pleasant by carrying enough things but her art is that she carries very little and does not spend much money.

Three things she always does carry. One is a small shaded light with enough length of cord so that it can be placed anywhere in the room. This she considers absolutely essential, as no room can look other than dismal with only high lighting. She also carries her own puff which flung over the foot of the bed adds a lovely touch of color and makes her independent of insufficient or unsatisfactory bed clothing. The third article is a pretty cretonne cover for her trunk which thereby often becomes a window seat. The shade of the lamp, the puff, and the cretonne cover should be in the same tones, of course. As she thinks any other color that is the basis of yellow brightens a room more than her color scheme.

She Seldom Spends a Dollar.

The things she buys are these: One yellow desk blotter for the desk, or the table which she asks for if there is no desk. One bowl, for fruit, of a good design and color which she says can be picked up for ten cents. (The last time I saw her room she had a most artistic one of glazed brown pottery). One bowl for flowers or green stuff of similar cost. Some yellow tissue paper out of which she fashions simple shades for the wall lights.

She is a person of great artistic perception and appreciation so she takes down most of the pictures that she finds in the rooms she rents. In place of these she puts two or three of the beautiful reproductions that the magazines and the Sunday supplements supply us with nowadays. She mounts these on some simple cardboard—mount of her own devising, and fastens them on the wall, changing them from time to time.

Sometimes, when she is to be for several weeks at any place she has a few bulbs growing in another of the inexpensive artistic bowls.

The Finest Ornament of All.

If there is a mantel, a cover of quaint design and beautiful coloring, which she always carries with her, the bowl for flowers, her traveling clock and perhaps one of those wonderful ten-cent candlesticks make it attractive.

To these simple ornaments within the reach of all she adds one more, equally possible for anyone to have—the ornament of perfect immaculateness and order. And the result is that the simplest, barest room becomes homelike and habitable when she lives in it. Do you think I go too far in calling her manner of accommodating herself to her surroundings an art?

Tomorrow—Could You Drive an Automobile Looking Backwards?

Miss Louise Vogt, a student at the Louisville School of Art, has just completed a 14-foot, 1-story studio. She not only drew up the plans, but did all the carpenter work herself.

In 1918 there were 157 girls working on the street car lines in Baltimore, but today there are but sixteen of these conductresses to be found on the widely scattered lines of that city.

DRESS BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

(Copyright, 1921, for The Constitution.)

The Pheasant Feather Has Come Back Into Fashion After It Reached the Lowest Step on the Ladder and Its New Length and Expense Bring It Into the Lighthouse on Black Velvet and Felt Hats.

WILL some milliner, taking a cue from Mrs. William Beebe, write: "Pheasant Feathers I have met?"

Once upon a time, and not so long ago at that, we saw the brown and white pheasant feather exhibited in shop windows where they were marked down to ten cents. This to the Americans is the ultimate reason for throwing a fashion in the discard.

Judge then of the surprise of a small group of experts who watched the triumphal passage through a restaurant of a huge black velvet hat with pheasant feathers a yard or so long. There was no mistaking its air of victory, nor the undoubted fashion of the woman who wore it. So said the group of those who were engaged in the indoor sport of watching waiting, this bird had come into its own again—and by bird meaning pheasant.

It is difficult to persuade American women that a fashion so recently discarded can be quickly returned to power. We felt that way about monkey fur, fringe, and pheasant feathers, yet the people who design clothes ask us to accept all three.

There is one touch of difference in the feathers of yesterday and today. The former were natural in coloring and therefore somewhat somber; the latter are gay and daring. They are dyed whatever color strikes the fancy of the milliner. They often bring out a brilliant lining and persuade women to forsake the all-black hat. The sketch shows how it is done. Its shape would satisfy any merry widow and its immense brim is lined with red duvetyne, a color which the feathers carry out in their scarlet and black markings. They are placed across the hat, the quills run through the black velvet brim to appear beyond the ear on the inside. No milliner cares for the integrity of velvet. It, with other costly fabrics, is pierced by quills and nailheads whenever the fancy takes a craze.

Beyond the fact that you can re-instate pheasant in your head coverings there is another fact which insists that you must do it in a most unconventional manner. It is not the thing to buy those ten-cent affairs and tack them to the upper part of the brim. That won't do. You must buy gorgeous specimens of this plumage, the kind Mr. William Beebe, ornithologist, would call unusual, then dip them in colors they do not possess and do something extraordinary when you place them on the hat. Then and then alone, are you in high fashion.

One must not overlook another touch of importance in this hat, which is its lining of red duvetyne. There is a strong desire to use this soft, warm woolen material as a lining in a garment as well as a hat. Evening cloaks of black satin generously trimmed with fur to raise their price, have duvetyne on the inside and it is more often red than black.

Women purse their lips and frown a bit when they regard this sartorial departure. Tradition has advocated fur for winter, chiffon for summer, for so many decades that the public is inclined to think a cheap trick of some kind is in progress when they see the change. Not so. It's the fashion.

THE HOUSEHOLD

GOOD LUNCHEONS FOR COLD DAYS.

Anchovy With Eggs.
PREPARE slices of ordinary toast, butter them while hot, and spread with anchovy paste. Put two tablespoons butter in a saucepan, and when melted add two tablespoons of flour and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, three-fourths of a cup of rich milk, and bring to the boiling point. Add three-fourths of a cup of stewed and strained tomatoes to which has been added one-eighth of a teaspoon of soda. Again bring to the boiling point, and add two cups of finely cut soft, mild cheese, and two eggs slightly beaten. Season with salt, mustard, and cayenne. Serve as soon as cheese has melted.

Cheese With Potato Puffs.
One cup of mashed potatoes, one-fourth cup of milk, one egg, one-half teaspoon of salt, one-half cup of grated cheese.
Beat the potatoes and milk together until thoroughly mixed. Add the egg and the salt and beat thoroughly. Finally add the cheese. Bake in muffin tins in a slow oven ten or fifteen minutes.

A similar dish may be made by scooping out the inside of a baked potato and mixing it with cheese as above. Fill the potato-skin shell with the mixture, return to the oven, and bake until light brown.

Omelet With Canned Lobster.
Turn the lobster into a saucepan; heat thoroughly with butter and pepper and salt and half a glass of white wine. Make an omelet with six eggs in the usual way, putting on the warm lobster when the bottom is cooked, but reserving the claws and more brilliant bits of coral. Fold the omelet, slide on a hot dish, butter the top, putting on the claws and other pieces for ornament. Serve quickly.

"Madame wears her hair like the Countess de Vese," she observed, busy with comb and brush. "Ooo too stop here at ze hotel."

Miss Dare raised her brows but made no reply. She would have liked to ask more about the countess and other notables who were dwelling at the huge fashionable hotel where she had elected to make her temporary home for the season.

But among the books that littered the reading table beside Jeanne Dare's bed was one entitled, "What Is Proper on All Occasions," and one of its early precepts was:

"Always discourage familiarity or gossip in servants. It is the inevitable sign of a woman of culture."

There were other books of similar ilk there. One told how to modulate and use the voice. Another was devoted to graceful carriage. How to write social notes; the proper procedure for hostess and for guest; how to dress on all occasions, filled another volume. Besides this, there were copies of Vanity Fair, Town and Country, Town Topics and other society periodicals showing signs of careful and frequent perusal.

"Voilà!" The maid stepped back once more from the completed coiffure, her eyes seeking Jeanne's in the mirror.

The coiffure was a work of art. Jeanne was secretly delighted with her reflection. She was almost startled at her own beauty.

But she only said languidly: "That will do, I think. Now, I want you to hook my frock before I go."

Playing a Game.
Hooking Jeanne's frock consisted of adjusting a single snap that held the jet girle of her black dinner gown. The rest of the gown depended for its allowance to Jeanne's slim figure upon a frail strand of jet across and snuggled, $2.50. The whole of her perfect shoulders was bare and even in the front of her scant bodice, modestly yielded to fashion.

"You go," Jeanne surveyed her reflection critically in the mirror, "I shall wait you again at this time tomorrow, and each day thereafter until my own maid can leave her sick family."

It was a cruel little prevarication—this fiction of the absent maid—but the hotel maids of Manhattan are not paid by the management to call a bluff.

Never inward smiling they ma. d.

She might have been a young princess, masquerading as a simple American girl masquerading as a princess.

When the maid had gone, Jeanne went into her tiny sitting room on the fifteenth floor of the great hotel overlooking Central Park. It was twilight there and before she pressed the button of the wall switch she to the windows and stood looking down into the fairland of lights.

Over in the west, the sun had set in a blaze of crimson and saffron and traces of the afterglow still lingered in the chill winter glow. The bare branches of the park trees were starkly outlined in the fading light. Millions of arc lights like tiny brilliant jewels marked the confines of the park and these were mingling with myriad other lights in amber, and green and orange that bespoke hordes of home-going motorists.

Large numbers of these flashed from the headlights of limousines, Jeanne knew. She had been in New York long enough to picture their occupants. Well-fed, sleek men in fur-collared great coats, heavy of jaw and fishy of eye! Women as obvious as mechanical dolls, swathed in stausous furs with diaphanous hose above frivolous pumps with buckles of brilliant! Poms and Pekinese with gold collars, yapping fretfully!

Ends Stubborn Cough in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this home-made remedy has no equal. It is ready and cheerful, and it is magic. It is very easily prepared and there is nothing better for a cough. Into a pint bottle, put 2 1/2 cups of Pineapple Juice, add 1/2 cup of sugar syrup to make a full pint. You can use clarified molasses, or corn syrup, instead of sugar. Either way, the full pint saves a two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations. It gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly. It tastes pleasant—children like it. You can feel this take hold in soothing and healing the membrane in all the air passages. It loosens a dry, tight cough, and you will notice the phlegm thin and disappear. A day's use will break up an ordinary throat or cold, and it is also splendid for whooping cough, hoarseness, and chills.

Pineapple is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine No. 1 extract, the most reliable for throat and chest ailments. To avoid disappointment, ask the druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pineapple Juice" and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give instant satisfaction or money refunded. The Pineapple Co., Ft. AN HEIR AT LARGE

CHAPTER I.
Young Henry Livingston Bacon sat hunched up in a deep chair dazed by the change in his fortunes.

Yesterday he wondered where he was to get the money to pay his room rent. Today he could buy the whole apartment house, grounds and furnishings, together with all the neighboring property for a couple of blocks in both directions.

It was incredible. As though reconstructing an elusive dream, he recalled the even tones of the lawyer whose office he had so recently left.

Bacon remembered how he had been the principal and interest became yours by virtue of a trust agreement between the settler and the trustees made nearly four years ago. After transferring the estate to his life he retained the income during his lifetime.

"Asid from half a dozen of his closest business associates, no one knew the extent of your uncle's operations or the magnitude of his fortune. He was very secretive."

Bacon remembered how he had been struck by word "magnitude." It was unexpectedly impressive.

"Having disposed of his fortune by trust agreement before his death he had been obliged to file an income tax return for three years before he had been work nearly three years before. He had plugged along to his present position, paying $2,500 a year, without benefit of pay. During those three years he had seen little of his uncle, but evidently an appraising eye had been upon him."

"This—the fortune," he finally recalled, "he had converted almost wholly into tax exempt securities, which by reason of an old decision—the McCulloch against Maryland decision—are not taxable by the federal government.

"You will be interested, I'm sure, in hearing that, after the payment of all taxes, claims and debts, the fortune you inherit will reach very close to—"

The lawyer paused here to note the effect. He then added evenly: "Fifteen million dollars." He allowed himself the shadow of a smile. "It ought to be enough to keep the wolf from the door."

Fifteen millions! Instead of keeping the wolf from the door it would probably draw many to it.

Young Bacon never dreamed that his uncle, living in hermitlike seclusion, was so rich—far less than he might some day be his heir. In fact, he supposed himself to be in disfavor.

In college, and later in his regiment, he had won the honor of being the best amateur boxer in the 160-pound class, a distinction which could hardly have appealed to his cold, reserved uncle.

So certain was he of his uncle's disapproval that he had not attempted to him for help when he started to work nearly three years before. He had plugged along to his present position, paying $2,500 a year, without benefit of pay. During those three years he had seen little of his uncle, but evidently an appraising eye had been upon him."

Mrs. Stacy Hill Rides Ship of Desert to Garden of Allah, Spends Night Camping Out on Sahara and Sees Mirage

Atlantans have the opportunity of spending today in the Garden of Allah, surrounded by the resplendent atmosphere which pervades the description as written by Mrs. Stacy Ernest Hill, well-known Atlanta woman, who watched the sunset of November 3 on the desert of Sahara. She had as a guide the man who was with Robert Hitchens for many weeks when he was collecting color for his stirring book, "The Garden of Allah."

Mrs. Hill found the scene most entrancing and she has expressed the desire to spend the winter in this renowned spot at some future date. She has motored through northern Africa with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Berry, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Drayton Miller, of Chicago, and while in Biskra, Algeria, she stopped at the Hotel du Sahara. She made the trip through the desert with a party of American travelers, each one riding a camel. The guides were native Arabs and walked the entire distance.

Mrs. Hill writes a friend of her interesting experiences as follows:

SPLENDID JEWEL AT DESERT'S EDGE.
"Tall, swaying palms, red pomegranates hanging from small trees, ripe dates to tempt the eyes, green olives bearing down the branches of frail trees, orange blossoms and golden fruit shining in the sun, hedges of blooming hibiscus, oleander bushes towering like trees among the palms, a view of the desert stretching out its barren waste for miles, dark-skinned men kneeling at prayer facing the desert—this is the Garden of Allah, made famous by Robert Hitchens' novel by that name."

"It was formerly called 'Le Jardin de Landan,' but now it is always called the Garden of Allah. Two days' journey by auto from the beautiful Mediterranean port, the city of Algiers, lies the village of Biskra, which is an oasis at the gate of the Sahara desert, and the garden is one of the best green spots to be seen before entering the desert."

"We supposed that it was quite far away, but we had a pleasant surprise when we found that we could walk there. Tourists from all parts of the world can be found in Biskra spending the winter months in that delightful atmosphere. The climate is perfect like an early October day in Georgia and one never realizes that it is Africa. While the palms and shrubs are just as they grew, the garden has been cultivated, the vines trained and everything kept spotlessly clean. So we did not see the jungles, sand dunes and different varieties of cacti as we expected. There are said to be 10,000 palm trees in the garden, seventy-one varieties of date palms alone, but only three coconut palms are to be seen, as they grow further south.

"The century plants grow very tall, while there are hedges of mimosa trees at one end of the garden, kept well trimmed, and tall geraniums are in profusion. There were only two species of cacti, the low, wandering, waxy species and the pear cactus on bushes. A little hidden brook runs through the garden making refreshing music as it flows rapidly on, forming a rainbow cascade down a small hill in the sunshine."

Tea House.
"In the center of the garden stands a white plaster tea house covered with vines; there tea is served on dainty white tables every day at 5 o'clock."

Sometimes it makes little puss pockets and eventually the gums shrink. A good dentist will clean the teeth, getting his instrument under the edge of the gum and removing all this hard, irritating tartar. Many dentists neglect this sort of fundamental work, which is one reason why pyorrhea is so common. Frankly, I would advise you to see another dentist at once and have your teeth cleaned properly. Otherwise, you may lose them, and you are far too young for anything like that."

Tomorrow—Steaming the Face.
All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. Madame Tetrassini, the prima donna, was only 16 years of age when she was called upon to fill the chief role at the opera house in Florence, Italy.

For a college woman, Miss Marjorie Eaton, of Old Sudbury, Mass., has taken up an unusual and unique field of endeavor, that of restoring old graveyards.

Following the plan to make all its foreign offices 100 per cent American, the United States shipping board has transferred eighteen women stenographers from its Washington office to London.

The records for real estate sales in London is held by a woman—Mrs. Margaret E. Long, of Chicago, selling $1,500,000 worth of property since February 1 of this year.

While the new German constitution expressly states women enjoy all the rights of male citizens, it is necessary to pass a new law to permit them to pass a new law to permit them to become official floor traders and brokers on the floor of the bourses.

I have told before in this space the story of the woman who has her toes buffed and polished with a buffer every day. I think it is not at all a bad idea for a woman who has plenty of money and nothing in the world to do, except to make herself as beautiful as possible.

Unfortunately few of us have time enough for such luxury. Yet we should all keep our feet as healthy as possible, simply because we will gain that much more in comfort and efficiency. It need not take a great deal of time.

If the feet are very tired, or if they are inclined to be tender, give them a daily bath by soaking them in hot salt water. If there is any tendency toward an unpleasant odor, they require a special treatment which will be talked about another time. If there is any tendency towards callouses or corns, it will pay you to buy a good quality corn knife, and to learn the proper way to use it. You can even make use of the little safety razor blades if you are careful how you handle them.

After the feet have been soaked, preferably after you have had your bath, go over them with a knife and take off the tough yellow skin which, if neglected, will form a permanent corn. You must be very careful, for you will hurt yourself if you cut live skin and poison yourself if a cut is neglected. If you are afraid to use a corn knife, use a strip of sand paper or emery paper instead. Keep the nails cut straight across and fairly short by using sharp scissors, and clean them underneath and around the edges.

M. C.—If you are anywhere near 30 years of age, your weight is about 40 pounds too much. No wonder your stomach and hips are too large. Take bending exercises and rolling. Reduce by dieting. If you want my reduction tables send me a letter with a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Anxious.—Your description of the tender bleeding gums seems to me to be a perfect description of pyorrhea. This is caused by tartar getting against and under the gum, where it irritates, making the gum sensitive.

ISIS Perfect Cold Cream
Before retiring, give the skin a good massage with Isis Perfect Cold Cream. This stimulates the circulation, cleans out the pores of the skin, removes the blackheads and has a tendency to smooth out the wrinkles. A pure cold cream with an oil base—the smoothest and most satisfactory cold cream you have ever used for retaining the original lustrous texture of the skin and complexion.

A Sensation in Face Creams
These are the new creams that you have so often longed for—there is nothing just like them—Isis Vanishing Cream and Isis Cold Cream—an innovation in face creams. There is no skin that cannot be improved by the proper use of these creams. The Cold Cream removes the dirt, dirt and blackheads and smooths out the wrinkles, while the Vanishing Cream imparts a soft, smooth, velvety complexion and keeps the skin from getting red, rough or shiny from exposure. If you would know what it is to have a most exquisite complexion, try Isis Creams—they are fully warranted and you will find them delightful to use.

ISIS Vanishing Cream
Before you powder, give the skin a gentle massage with Isis Vanishing Cream. This gives the skin a soft, smooth, velvety appearance, keeps it from becoming dry, rough or shiny, and makes the powder stay on much longer. Isis Vanishing Cream is free from oils, vanishes immediately upon applying and will not reappear—a perfect delight to the woman who cares how her complexion looks.

ance race for camels last winter from Biskra to Touggout, 250 kilometres, the winning camel making it in a day and a half, stopping only twice for food and water.

"When we arrived at our camp in the desert and had dismounted the camels rolled over and over in the sand, not waiting for the saddles and draperies to be removed. The guide was quite proud of us because no one fell off while dismounting and no one was sea sick."

SEES MIRAGE AND DESERT SUNSET.

"We saw the mirage in the desert before we reached our destination in the shape of the lake which was not there. It was very weird and I was never quite convinced that it was not a real lake. We arrived in time to see a gorgeous sunset, followed by a sky assuming every color imaginable from a scarlet red down to sombre grays. The guide built a fire and after cooking a good supper for us he stood near by and played a strange looking flute. In that calm stillness of the night it produced a most soothing effect. This same guide had been in the desert with Robert Hitchens and it was this flute that the author spoke of in his book. The Arab spoke English fluently and had many tales of adventures in the desert to relate."

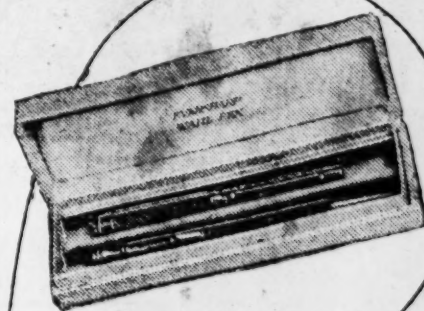

"By the time we had finished our supper a full moon was shining on us and it made a strangely beautiful picture with the sleeping camels, the Arabs, the tents and the glowing fire. When we found that we could buy a camel there for $15 we were so enthusiastic that night we felt like buying camels and touring Africa on them. We were not as enthusiastic the next day, when the stiffness appeared and decided that it would be better to buy a burro for $3. We finished our strenuous day by dancing a Virginia reel in the moonlight, then rolled in our blankets and slept a few hours, waking in time to witness a wonderful sunrise."

"We returned to Biskra through the native Arab village where the houses are made of mud and adobe, resembling those of the Arizona desert used by the Indians. We also saw numbers of Nomads living in tents with herds of camels, burros, goats and dogs wandering about.

"The narrow streets were lined with children who followed us crying, 'Bon Jour' and holding out their hands for a sou. The number of blind people to be seen is simply appalling! There is certainly a large field here for a medical missionary who is an eye specialist and one who can teach the careless mothers how to care for the children's eyes in infancy. On questioning the guide he said it was because of the gnats and flies stinging them and carrying disease. They again they use polluted water for washing. One of the amusing sights of Biskra was the street car, driven by an Arab in his native costume."

BEAUTY CHATS
EDNA KENT FORBES

I have told before in this space the story of the woman who has her toes buffed and polished with a buffer every day. I think it is not at all a bad idea for a woman who has plenty of money and nothing in the world to do, except to make herself as beautiful as possible.

Unfortunately few of us have time enough for such luxury. Yet we should all keep our feet as healthy as possible, simply because we will gain that much more in comfort and efficiency. It need not take a great deal of time.

If the feet are very tired, or if they are inclined to be tender, give them a daily bath by soaking them in hot salt water. If there is any tendency toward an unpleasant odor, they require a special treatment which will be talked about another time. If there is any tendency towards callouses or corns, it will pay you to buy a good quality corn knife, and to learn the proper way to use it. You can even make use of the little safety razor blades if you are careful how you handle them.

After the feet have been soaked, preferably after you have had your bath, go over them with a knife and take off the tough yellow skin which, if neglected, will form a permanent corn. You must be very careful, for you will hurt yourself if you cut live skin and poison yourself if a cut is neglected. If you are afraid to use a corn knife, use a strip of sand paper or emery paper instead. Keep the nails cut straight across and fairly short by using sharp scissors, and clean them underneath and around the edges.

M. C.—If you are anywhere near 30 years of age, your weight is about 40 pounds too much. No wonder your stomach and hips are too large. Take bending exercises and rolling. Reduce by dieting. If you want my reduction tables send me a letter with a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Anxious.—Your description of the tender bleeding gums seems to me to be a perfect description of pyorrhea. This is caused by tartar getting against and under the gum, where it irritates, making the gum sensitive.

Vogue Demands ISIS

ISIS Perfect Cold Cream
Before retiring, give the skin a good massage with Isis Perfect Cold Cream. This stimulates the circulation, cleans out the pores of the skin, removes the blackheads and has a tendency to smooth out the wrinkles. A pure cold cream with an oil base—the smoothest and most satisfactory cold cream you have ever used for retaining the original lustrous texture of the skin and complexion.

A Sensation in Face Creams
These are the new creams that you have so often longed for—there is nothing just like them—Isis Vanishing Cream and Isis Cold Cream—an innovation in face creams. There is no skin that cannot be improved by the proper use of these creams. The Cold Cream removes the dirt, dirt and blackheads and smooths out the wrinkles, while the Vanishing Cream imparts a soft, smooth, velvety complexion and keeps the skin from getting red, rough or shiny from exposure. If you would know what it is to have a most exquisite complexion, try Isis Creams—they are fully warranted and you will find them delightful to use.

Young Girls Are Hostesses At Studio Tea

A trio of prominent young Atlanta artists, Miss Louise Barnwell, Miss Asaue Powers and Miss Effie Daniel, entertained a group of their friends at their first studio tea yesterday afternoon in the Little Paint Shop building, on Peachtree street, assisted by their teacher, Mrs. Charles Jerome.

All fall these girls have been busily engaged in studying and practicing producing applied art, so that the studio on Wednesday afternoon presented the most attractive array of hand-painted articles, arranged on tables, with each artist standing ready to talk most interestingly of her individual work.

Mrs. Walter Barnwell poured tea, while Mrs. Charles T. Daniel and Mrs. Drury Powers assisted the hostesses in entertaining.

Miss Barnwell wore a gown of black chiffon velvet. Miss Daniel was gowned in henna duvetyne, and Miss Powers wore a gown of dark blue canton crepe combined with henna George crepe.

The tea table was adorned with a rustic basket filled with winter fruits. Cakes and candies were served from silver compotes.

Mrs. Jerome wore a gown of blue canton crepe, embroidered in bead design.

Among the guests were Mrs. Claude Shewmake, Mrs. J. S. Dickey, Mrs. Grace Calley, Mrs. Warden, Mrs. Harriet Shewmake, Miss Elizabeth Shewmake, Mrs. Ernest Dallis, Mrs. I. S. Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Howell Caldwell, Mrs. W. S. Rogers, Miss Margaret Stovall, Miss Frances Hurt, Miss Blanch Emery, Miss Marjorie Weldon and others.

Atlanta Chapter D. A. R. To Hold Meeting.

Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

An interesting program has been arranged, and a full attendance is requested. All visiting D. A. R.'s are welcome.

The regent, Mrs. E. R. Kirk, calls attention to the dues for 1922, which can be paid to the treasurer at the chapter house, as it is desirable, in view of the fact that the chapter would like her full quota to go to the continental congress, and the number who go depends on the number of paid-up members for the year.

Christmas Cantata.

On account of the community Christmas service at the Auditorium, the choir of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church will give a Christmas cantata, "The Shepherd's Vision," by Irene Berge, on Sunday evening, December 18.

This cantata consists of beautiful solos and quartet work.

The general public is very cordially invited to attend the service. The members of the choir are Mrs. W. O. Chears, soprano; Mrs. J. H. Whitten, contralto; A. W. Browning, tenor; J. Foster Barnes, bass, and Walter Peck Stanley, organist and choir master.

Script Dance at Garber Hall.

There will be a script dance at Garber hall Friday evening for the members and friends of the social and dancing clubs of the city. The students of the colleges of the city have been invited.

The music will be furnished by the Watson's Bell Hops' Orchestra of Columbus, and dancing will be from 9 until 1 o'clock.

The chapters will include Mrs. L. Culbreth, Mrs. W. J. Robinson, Mrs. M. L. Murray, Mrs. M. O. Brantley, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Long, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Harmon and others.

Recital at Mrs. Mueller's Studio.

An interesting program will be given by students from the class of Mrs. Kurt Mueller, at the Central Congregational church building, Friday, December 18, at 8:15 o'clock.

Appropriate for the Christmas season will be principal soprano and contralto arias from "The Messiah," also an old Christmas melody, formerly sung in the sixteenth century, especially arranged for female voices by Kurt Mueller. The public is cordially invited.

same to be said of the candies. The bon voyage table has correspondence cards all fitted up in artistic little cases to cheer the homelike, the traveler has left behind, and then the endless novelties—all beautiful and alluring are modest in price. The doll booth laden with tokens of love and happiness from Santa Claus to the little mothers.

The last of Mrs. W. D. Williams' wonderful dinners will be served on Thursday. The menu for both occasions will be as follows: Roast turkey with dressing, cranberries, celery hearts, rice with gravy, candied yams, Waldorf salad, home-made hot rolls, ice cream, cake, coffee, tea. Price 75 cents.

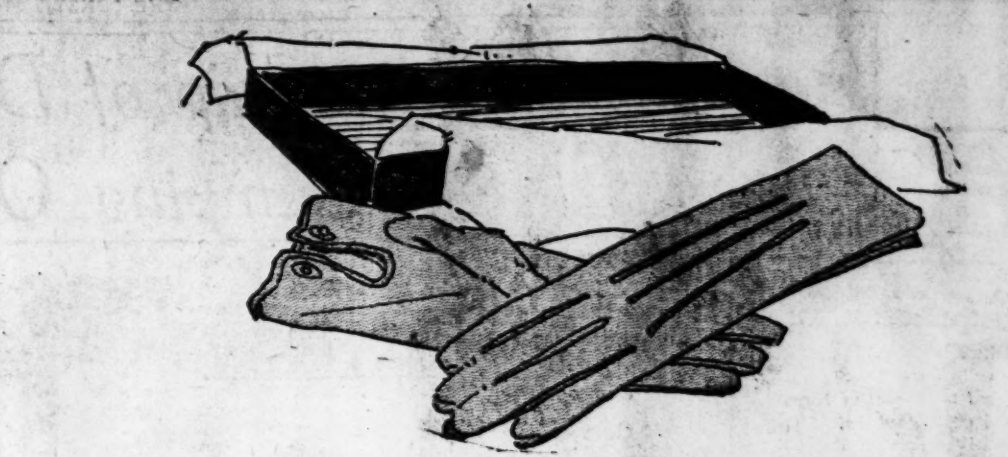

The following younger ladies will assist in serving dinner and supper: Misses Helen Morris, Eileen Morris, Anne Stringfellow, Margaret Vaughn, Maybelle McLeod, Benteen, Anita Englehart, Margaret Bryan, Elizabeth Sety, Winnie Percy, Mai Horine, Mrs. Robert Perry, Mrs. Frank Marsh and others.

Traviata Chorus Will Meet Tonight.

There will be a special meeting of the community chorus, now rehearsing "Traviata," tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the opera studio of Sig. E. Volpi at the Wesley Memorial church.

Violin Recital.

This evening at Phillips & Crew hall Miss Spencer McLaughley, the gifted young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. McLaughley, of 425 Bedford place, will present an artistic violin program. Miss McLaughley represented the Atlanta Music Study

NEWMAN FARMER COMMITS SUICIDE

Newman, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—C. S. Finckannon, well-known citizen of Newman, ended his life about 4 o'clock this afternoon by hanging himself in a barn on his farm near town. The body was discovered by his 16-year-old son, George Finckannon. The body was still warm when cut down, showing that the act had been committed only a short time previously.

The dead man served on the city police force for several years, but left the service five or six years ago to engage in farming, in which he was extensively interested. Two crop failures in succession are supposed to have preyed on his mind to the point of desperation, causing him to take his life.

The deceased was about 65 years of age and came originally from Habersham county, where he has relatives. Surviving are his widow, three sons and a daughter.

HIT BY AUTOMOBILE, OFFICER IS INJURED

Motorcycle Officer T. J. Harrison, of the city police department, was slightly injured Wednesday night near Peachtree street and Peachtree circle, when he was struck by the auto of Dr. C. E. Murphy, of 156 Peachtree circle.

It is understood that Harrison's motor was in need of slight repair, and the officer was working on it near the curb when Dr. Murphy's auto struck him. The motorcycle was badly damaged. No case was docketed against Dr. Murphy.

PENSION PAYMENT WILL BE DELAYED

Nearly $2,000,000 for payment of pensions of Confederate veterans, made available through the recent sale of $2,700,000 worth of deferred Western and Atlantic warrants by the state to the Citizens and Southern bank of Atlanta, will be turned over Thursday to John W. Lindsey, commissioner of pensions, for distribution throughout the state. This money will be sent direct to the ordinaries of the various counties by Commissioner Lindsey. The ordinaries, on receipt of the money, will begin payment to the pensioners.

It is not possible to begin actual payment of the pension money to the pensioners until the county ordinary receives his checks from the state commissioner. In Fulton county the check probably will be received in time to begin payments to pensioners by Saturday, but certainly not before this time, according to Ordinary T. H. Jeffries.

"The money cannot be paid by the counties until it is received from the state, and although the state will get the money Thursday, it is certain that payments in Fulton county cannot begin before Saturday," Judge Jeffries said.

In counties in remote parts of the state it is not probable that actual payment to the pensioners will begin until next week. The total amount of pensions to be paid in all classes is approximately $1,850,000.

Governor Hardwick issued a statement in which he declared all pensions appropriated by the legislature will be paid up to January 1, 1922. The balance of the money coming from the sale of the warrants will be used by the governor to make a 10 per cent payment of the schools appropriation, so that the school teachers can get their salaries in time for Christmas.

CLAUDE A. WEST WILL BE PLACED ON TRIAL TODAY

Claude A. West, former executive secretary to three Georgia governors, charged with embezzlement of state funds amounting to approximately $14,000, will be placed on trial Thursday in the Fulton superior court. Solicitor General John A. Boykin stated Wednesday he expects the case to go to trial when scheduled.

Attorney General George M. Napier, who will assist in the prosecution of the case in behalf of the state, announced Wednesday that he will be ready for trial Thursday morning. Seward W. Smith, assistant attorney general, also will take part in the case.

West was arrested recently after a warrant had been sworn out against him charging embezzlement of state funds and larceny after trust. He was released under bond of $10,000, but later was arrested a second time after indictments had been returned against him by the Fulton county grand jury. He made bond again and was released.

The discrepancies were found in the insurance accounts of the governor's office, which were in the charge of West for several years.

Jones Is Named Relations Official
Of Movie Concern

Howard Turner Jones has been appointed public relations representative by the Southern Enterprises, Inc., of Atlanta. Mr. Jones will be charged with the duty of acquainting the public with motion picture problems and keeping in touch with developing public opinion throughout the six southeastern states.

Relative to the inauguration of the new work, J. E. Freeman, general manager of the corporation, stated that "the problem of supplying communities with clean, wholesome entertainment renders it necessary that the company maintain the most vital touch with the public. The interests of the motion picture industry and the public which they serve are not only inseparable, but positively dependent upon each other for the welfare of each."

Mr. Jones is a graduate of the University of Virginia, a former newspaper man, and was lieutenant of tanks in the A. E. F. He is a resident of Atlanta, and son of Dr. M. Ashby Jones, of this city.

AUTOMOBILE TAG SALE WILL BEGIN AT CAPITOL TODAY

Preparations have been completed in the office of Secretary of State S. Q. McDaniel for the sale beginning Thursday of automobile license tags for 1922, according to an announcement made at the secretary's office Wednesday. The sale will begin early Thursday morning and tags may be purchased at the motor vehicle office without penalties up until March 1, 1922. After that date tags can only be purchased through county sheriffs and a fee of $1 in addition to the regular license charge will be asked, this fee going to the sheriff.

The new tags for 1922 will have white letters on a black background. A different type of tag will be used on motor trucks.

GEORGIA WELFARE CONFERENCE WILL MEET IN ATLANTA

Plans for holding a state welfare conference in Atlanta are being attended by welfare workers from all parts of Georgia were outlined at a meeting of the conference promotion committee held Wednesday afternoon. The conference will be held in April or May and several men of national fame as welfare workers will be invited to attend.

Kendall W. Weisger was elected chairman of the promotion committee Wednesday. Committees on arrangements, membership, permanent officers, program and publicity were formed.

Welfare workers interested in dependent, delinquent and defective will be invited to attend the conference.

AD MEN'S CLUB TO HOLD XMAS PROGRAM TODAY

A special Christmas program will be carried off at the luncheon of the Ad Men's club held at the Kimball house at 230 Peachtree street this afternoon. It is announced that serious business will be brought before the meeting and the program will be one of entertainment.

A feature of the program will be the singing of a group of songs by Mrs. Will Egan. Musical acts will be given by professional and amateur talent from the Lyric and Grand theaters. Secretaries of the club will give business catalogues upon advertising. An attendance prize, a Merita fruit cake will be given by L. Roy Rogers, a prominent member of the club.

IV—AN UNKNOWN FOREIGNER.
"You will come again soon?" Bernadine begged, when, at last, Madame Hagon insisted upon going.

"It is so difficult," she murmured. "If my husband knew—"

Bernadine laughed, and touched her fingers carefully.
"Need one tell him?" he whispered. "You see, I trust you. I pray that you will come."

Bernadine was a man rarely moved towards emotion of any sort. Yet even he was conscious of a certain sense of excitement, as he stood looking out upon the embankment from the windows of Paul Hagon's sitting room.

A few days later, Madame was sitting on the sofa, close at hand. It was for her answer to a certain question that he waited.

"Monsieur," she said at last, turning slowly towards him, "it must be so. Indeed, I am sorry, for you have been very charming to me, and without you I should have been dull. But to come to your rooms and dine alone tonight, it is impossible."

"Your husband cannot return before the morning," Bernadine reminded her. "It makes no difference," she answered. "Paul sometimes comes and goes, but he is not here now."

"And there is no one else," Bernadine asked softly, "who can keep even the smallest place in your heart?"

"Monsieur," the woman begged, "you must not ask me that. I think that you had better go away."

Bernadine stood quite still for several moments. It was the climax towards which he had steadily guided the course of this mild intrigue.

"Madame," he declared, "you must not go away now. You shall not. I will wait for you here."

Then Bernadine took the plunge. He became suddenly very grave.

"Sophia," he said, "I am keeping a great secret from you, and I can do it no longer. When you speak to me of your husband, you drive me mad."

"I believed that you really loved him. I would go away and leave it to chance whether or not you ever discovered the truth. As it is—"

"Tell me," she interposed breathlessly. "As it is," he continued, "I am going to tell you now. Your husband has deceived you—he is deceiving you every moment."

She looked at him incredulously. "You mean that there is another woman?"

Bernadine shook his head. "Worse than that," he answered. "Your husband stole even your love under false pretenses. You think that his life is a strange one, that his nerves have broken down, that he flies from place to place for distraction, for change of scene. It is just so. He left Rome, he left Nice, he left Paris, for one and the same reason. He left because he was in peril of his life. I know little of your history, but I know as much as this. If ever a man deserved the fate from which he flees, your husband deserves it."

"You are mad," she faltered. "No, I am sane," he went on. "It is you who are mad, not to have understood. Your husband goes over in fear of his life. His real name is a name branded with ignominy throughout the world. The man whom you have married, to whom you are so scrupulously faithful, is the man who sent your father to death and your brothers to Siberia."

"Father Paul!" she screamed. "You have lived with him, you are his wife," Bernadine declared. "The color had left her cheeks; her eyes, with their penciled brows, were fixed in an almost deadly stare; her breath was coming in uneven gasps. She looked at him in silent terror."

"It is not true," she cried at last; "it cannot be true."

"Sophia," he said, "you can prove it for yourself. I know a little of your husband and his doings. Does he not carry always with him a black box, which he will not allow out of his sight?"

"Always," she assented. "How did you know? By night his hand rests upon it. By day, if he goes out, it is in my charge."

"Fetch it now," Bernadine directed, "and I will prove my words."

She did not hesitate for a moment. She disappeared into the inner room; and came back, only a few moments absent, carrying in her hand a black leather dispatch box.

"You have the key?" he asked. "Yes," she answered, looking at him and trembling, "but I dare not—oh, I dare not open it!"

"Sophia," he said, "if my words are not true, I will pass out of your life for always. I challenge you. If you open that box you will know that your husband is, indeed, the greatest scoundrel in Europe."

She drew a key from a gold chain around her neck.

"There are two locks," she told him. "The other is a combination, but I know the word. Who's that?"

She started suddenly. There was a loud tapping at the door. Bernadine threw an anticlimactic half over the box, but he was too late. De Grost and Hagon had crossed the threshold. The woman stood some dumb creature. Hagon, transfixed, stood with his eyes riveted upon Bernadine. His face was distorted with passion, he seemed like a man beside himself with fury. De Grost came slowly forward into the middle of the room.

"Count von Horn," he said, "I think that you had better leave."

The woman found words. "Not yet," she cried, "not yet! Paul listen to me. This man has told me a terrible thing."

The breath seemed to come through Hagon's teeth like a hiss. "He has told you?"

"Listen to me," she continued. "It is the truth which you must tell now. He says that you—you are Father Paul!"

Hagon did not hesitate for a second. "It is true," he admitted.

Then there was a silence—short, but tragical. Hagon seemed suddenly to have collapsed. He was like a man who has just had a stroke. He stood muttering to himself.

"It is the end—this—the end!" he said, in a low tone. "Sophia!"

She shrank away from him. He drew himself up. One more of the great light flashed in his face.

"It was for your sake," he said simply, "for your sake, Sophia. I came to you once, and you would have nothing to say to me. My love for you burned in my veins like fever. It was for you I did it—for your sake I sold my honor, the love of my country, the freedom of my brothers. For your sake I risked an awful death. For your sake I have lived like a hunted man, with the cry of the wolves always in my ears, and the fear of death and of eternal torture with me day by day. No other man since the world was made has done more. Have pity on me!"

She was unmoved; her face had lost all expression. No one noticed in that rapid moment that Bernadine had crept from the room.

"It was you," she cried, "who killed my father and sent my brothers into exile."

"God help me!" he moaned. She turned to De Grost.

"Take him away with you, please," she said. "I have finished with him."

"Sophia," he pleaded. She leaned across the table and struck him heavily upon the cheek.

"If you stay here," she muttered, "I shall kill you myself."

That night the body of an unknown foreigner was found in the attic of a cheap lodging house in Soho. The discovery itself and the verdict at the inquest occupied only a few lines of the morning newspapers. Those few lines were the epitaph of one who was very nearly a King.

A Ransom. A part of his papers De Grost mercifully destroyed, but one in particular he preserved. Within a week the much delayed treaty was signed at Paris, London and St. Petersburg.

DESTINY

BY CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

"The Fighting Shepherdess," by Caroline Lockhart.
Starting Next Sunday.

Mary slept little that night. Against her windows screamed and whined the wind, driving a swirl of fine, hard snow in its breath. From the river came the dull, groaning of the fog horns.

But the storm which kept her eyes hot and sleepless was one within her own breast.

Over and over again she told herself that the work for which she was volunteering was in no wise disgraceful. Probably many women who were her superiors were doing it with willingness, even with pride. It would mean for her mother, as the reporter had reminded her, comfort and competent nursing. Perhaps, in surroundings of greater ease, her father might even yet rehabilitate himself in a manner old age.

Save to serve them, her own life was already lived out.

But the shudder of disgust would return, despite her efforts at its banishment, and shake her like a chill. In her case it was not vaudeville—and it was only "going to herself to call it so. No manager was considering the payment of a salary to her for anything she could legitimately do.

It was what Smitherton had described it; capitalizing the publicity of a misfortune so sweeping as to have a morbid public interest.

They would war on over and republish all the sensational details which time had cooled. The story she had refused to write, others would not refuse to write—neither would they refuse to "color" certain scenes into "drama."

The girl, lying in her bed, pressed her forehead against her eyes and struggled to shut out the pictures that rose as horrors in her mind—but they passed and repressed with fiendish pertinacity.

To any human being a situation is what it seems to be.

Had she actually, like the Lady Godiva, been called upon to ride the length of Broadway, clad only in her beautiful hair and placarded "Burton's Sister and Edward's Financier," it could have meant to her delicacy of feeling no greater trial; no more truly denuding of herself to the public gaze. Had all this realization not been so keen and so poignant, Mary Burton would not have fought so long against the idea which seemed the only way.

Were there just herself she would, before considering such desecration of every sacred memory, have preferred to stuff with paper the crannies of that wind-rattled window and to turn on the gas.

In comparison this would have been easy.

But it was not herself alone. From the next room she heard the heavy snore of her father and the gentle sleeping breath of her mother. Personal preferences and prejudices belonged to the past.

Very well—she still had the flaming Burton courage. She would do this hateful thing, and when she gazed on the eyes that gluttered their curiosity with staring she would meet them serenely and give them no sign that she was being tormented.

And this thing, Mary Burton did with that calm dignity which is vouchsafed to those whose souls are of heroic quality.

It was only when the day's work of rehearsal ended and she was locked again in her own room that the sad dry-eyed and wretched, remembering a dozen things which made her shudder. But as she walked along the streets she kept her eyes to the front, because she could not tell from what wall one of those blazing "three sheets" might confront.

They were advertising her as "Mary Hamilton Burton"—that the value of those two names might doubly vivify the curiosity of the morbid.

Also she avoided as a pestilence the newspapers, and what they might contain.

Abey Lewis, the manager of the theater, did not understand her, though he had handled a variety of people during his long career as a purveyor of "refined vaudeville" to the public. He confessed as much to Mr. Smitherton, with whom, as Miss Burton's business manager, he came into a constant association.

"I don't get her at all, Mr. Smitherton," he quizzically complained. "I've known most all the big-time artists that have come along in vaudeville, and she ain't like none of them I ever seen. I've made a lot of headlines; but this girl acts like it gives her a pain to talk to me, and she don't seem to take no interest in her act."

They were sitting in the darkened theater while Mary Burton was being rehearsed in the short and dramatic sketch which Smitherton had secured for her.

"Has it occurred to you, Lewis," he suggested with a certain coolness of manner, "that you wouldn't be paying Miss Burton the salary you are if she were like anybody else you have known? Haven't you considered the fact that this lady is going to pack your place to capacity because of her difference?"

"Maybe so. Maybe she's a great novelty. I ain't kicking," assented the other. "But it seems to me that she ought to be more grateful—for the chance she's getting. She's a knockout, all right. Them eyes ought to set folks going—I wish she'd use 'em more!"

The day of the ordeal arrived. It had pleased the management to call a rehearsal after the matinee, so Mary had not been able to go home before her stage debut. Tomorrow, if all went well, she would remove her parents to a greater comfort.

Her mother had been less well than usual during these last few days and Mary had impressed upon old Tom Burton the necessity of remaining on watch during her own absence. But out of the advance money she had received old Tom had drawn a small allowance, and it was remarkable how greatly the manner of bartenders had changed for the better in the brief space of a few days.

By nightfall Thomas Standish Burton was more than tipsy, and by eight o'clock as he emerged from a side door his step was so unsteady that he found the slippery footing a matter requiring studious attention.

Old Tom Burton made the trip back to the lodging-house and up the double flight of stairs in safety. Then he opened the door of his wife's room and entered. But after one step he stood still, then brushed a sleeve across his eyes to see more clearly. Elizabeth Burton lay full length on the floor near her chair—and she seemed unconscious.

The old man hurried over to her and succeeded in lifting her weight to the bed. She must have suffered a heart attack and fallen as she tried to cross the room alone.

For a while he stood stupefied; then he thought of Mary. Of course he must send word to Mary. Perhaps, too, life could still be coaxed back if a doctor came quickly enough.

Down the stairs he hobbled with a speed that drove him into a sort of clumsy gallop. On the first floor he knocked on the landlady's door and implored him to call a physician at once, while he himself went out to a telephone.

The nearest instrument was in a saloon, and hither the old man hurried. Mary had given him the number of the stage phone and he called it.

Despite the coldness of the night perspiration burst out and beaded his forehead as he waited, only to hear the exasperating voice of the operator announce "Busy."

Three times this was repeated, and while he waited, pacing frenziedly back and forth, he sought, after each successive failure, to ally the jump and tremor of his shocked nerves with whisky—and he poured generously.

At last he had the theater number and was told that Miss Burton could not answer just then, but a message would be delivered.

"Tell her to come home at once!" he shouted into the receiver. "Her mother is dying!"

"Wait!" came the somewhat startled reply. Then after a moment a new and truculent voice sounded in his ear:

"What is this?" it demanded; "a bum joke you're trying to put over on what? Don't you know a packed house is waiting to see Miss Burton in her act?"

"But I tell you—"

"Go tell it somewhere else," Thomas Burton did not know that it was Abey Lewis, the manager, who spoke. "I don't believe you, you're trying to string somebody. And if the Queen of China was dying she couldn't come now, anyways."

Slowly the manager turned from the receiver he had abruptly hung up and beckoned the subordinate who had first taken the message.

"Don't mention this to anybody," directed the chief tersely. "Do you get me? The girl mustn't hear it; and if any telegram or message comes, you bring 'em to me first, see?"

Old Tom Burton had rushed out of the saloon and was hastening at his awkward gallop to the Eighth St. station of the elevated. He was going to tell Mary in person, and to bring her home.

Around the turn of the rails he saw the lights of a train coming and urged by this obsession of haste, he strove for a greater speed.

The top steps were slippery and old, Tom was giddy and his legs uncertain. His foot shot out without warning and his body went hurtling backward.

He clutched desperately for the hand-rail, and missed it. Down the long flight of iron stairs in a bundle of ragged old humanity he rolled and lay shapeless on the pavement.

Normal Business In Auto Equipment Field Is Predicted

Charles C. Phillips, general representative of the Electric Heater Spark Plug company, of St. Louis, Mo., predicted a normal business in the automotive equipment field in 1922.

Mr. Phillips is introducing a new spark plug. It is said of the electric heated spark plug that the core, which is usually made of porcelain, is made of refined lava. Around this core is an electric coil which is used to heat the plugs on cold days, when the motor fails to start promptly. This feature is used also, according to Mr. Phillips, to burn off any carbon or oil that collects, thus making it unnecessary to clean the plugs in the usual manner.

According to Mr. Phillips, his company has just closed a large order for spark plugs to be used in airplane motors, after exhaustive tests made by experienced pilots and mechanics.

RAILROAD RATES WILL BE REDUCED

Without action by railroad commissions of any state both freight and passenger rates throughout the country will be automatically reduced from 3 per cent to 8 per cent through the removal of the federal tax January 1, 1922.

James A. Perry, member of the Georgia railroad commission, announced Wednesday. Mr. Perry issued a statement showing the effect of this reduction. These reductions in addition to the discontinuance of the Pullman surcharge made by the railroads will result in material reductions in expenses of travelers in Georgia. The surcharge will be discontinued in Georgia December 20, by an order of the state commission unless a rehearing is granted in the case.

In announcing the effect of the removal of the federal war tax on freight and passenger rates Commissioner Perry said:

"At the present time freight rates and express rates are plused 3 per cent over and above the tariff requirements to take care of this tax, while passengers riding in day coaches or Pullman cars are charged an 8 per cent tax both on tickets for railroad transportation and for the privilege of riding in Pullman cars."

"Illustrating the saving to a passenger riding from Atlanta to Valdosta: The present railroad fare is $8.32, of which 75 cents is war tax; the present Pullman charge is $4.05, of which 30 cents is tax and $1.25 Pullman surcharge. The railroad commission has eliminated the surcharge by proper order effective December 20, 1921. So that the railroad commission's action will produce as of January 1, 1922, a rate from Atlanta to Valdosta, including berth, of $11.07, instead of the $13.37 now in effect, a direct saving to a passenger moving from Atlanta to Valdosta of $2.30."

"The reduction made by the commission in connection with the elimination of the transportation taxes should prove of material benefit to the travelers and shippers in Georgia."

The workers this year are inspired to supreme efforts by the great need for funds on the part of the Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis association, the beneficiary of the sale. The organization, which for 25 years has directed the fight on tuberculosis in this city, is in immediate need of funds; and for this reason the sale is to be pushed with the utmost vigor.

Booths will be established in all the downtown shopping centers, and there will be committees on practically every downtown street corner, offering the stamps for Christmas packages and letters. The Parent-Teacher association, which is taking an active part in the sale, will confine its efforts to the residential districts, with booths in practically all the community shopping centers in various parts of the city.

MARINE STATION HERE RANKS FIFTH IN RECRUITING

Again the southeastern recruiting district of the marines ranked fifth out of the 32 recruiting districts in the United States in the number of applicants enlisted in that branch of the service during November, as announced by the recruiting bulletin from headquarters, received by Captain Peter C. Geyer, Jr., U. S. M. C., who is in charge of the southeastern district, with headquarters in the Austell building.

This district comprises the states of Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, the eastern half of Alabama, and Tennessee. Only the districts of New York, Kansas City, San Francisco and Washington were able to make a better showing during the past month than the leading southern district, and then lead by only a few enlistments.

Judging from the record made by the southeastern district, the marines are as popular in the south today as they were during the world war—when the rush for the colors was made by every eligible Georgian.

TECH BAND TO GIVE CONCERT ON SUNDAY

The Metropolitan theater, a local moving picture house, will be open to the public Sunday afternoon for a benefit concert by the Georgia Tech band. The concert will begin at 8 o'clock. The program will include a number of instrumental solos. Frank Roman is bandmaster.

The concert is given for the benefit of The Georgian empty stocking fund.

Groceries Are Stolen. Thirty dollars worth of groceries and other merchandise were reported stolen from the grocery establishment of J. H. Albright, 60 South Lee street, by burglars who entered the store some time Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning.

DR. LONG WILL LEAVE GEORGIA BAPTIST

Effective January 1, Dr. J. M. Long, who for the past eight years has been superintendent of the Georgia Baptist hospital here, has tendered his resignation to the board of trustees of the institution, through the president, Clifford Walker, of Monroe, It is understood that the board of trustees will meet during the week here to consider replacing Dr. Long.

Dr. Long has accepted the position of superintendent of the Birmingham Baptist hospital, his acceptance effective January 1. This hospital, which is stated to have a greater bed capacity than the Georgia Baptist hospital, is owned and operated by the Birmingham Baptist association, one of the largest organizations among southern Baptists.

Dr. Long came to the city in September, 1913, to assume charge of the Georgia Baptist hospital, which had been purchased in March preceding. Prior to its purchase by the denomination, it was known as the Tabernacle infirmary. Dr. Len G. Broughton, founder of the hospital, operated it for several years while he was pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle. During the superintendency of Dr. Long the hospital has been accorded the distinction of recognition by the American College of Surgeons. Only two other hospitals in Georgia are on this list. They are the Grady, and the University hospital, in Augusta.

NEW TRIAL IS GRANTED TO ALLEGED SLAYER

The supreme court Wednesday granted a new trial to James Douglas, a white man of Walker county, who was convicted recently on a charge of killing Sheriff A. G. Catron, of that county, and sentenced to be hanged. The verdict of the lower court was reversed by the supreme court on the ground that the trial judge erred in refusing to give certain charges to the jury asked by the defendant's attorneys and also because the jury in the case had been placed in positions where it might have been susceptible to outside influence. The killing occurred May 28, 1921.

The recent trial of Douglas in Walker county attracted much attention in the northwest part of the state and feeling ran high for a time in that community.

Douglas was accused of shooting the sheriff shortly after midnight while the sheriff was on a charge of violating the prohibition law. It was contended by the defense that the sheriff did not give Douglas proper notice that he was an officer when he made the attempt to arrest him and the supreme court upheld this contention.

CITY COAL WEIGHT LAW IS HELD VALID

The city ordinance requiring coal dealers to weigh coal on standard scales was held valid Wednesday in Fulton superior court, when Judge John T. Pendleton overruled an appeal from a decision of the recorder's court assessing a fine against the Standard Coal Co. for an alleged violation of the ordinance. Complaint against the coal company was filed by G. M. Ewing, 25 Larkin street.

TWO BROTHERS HELD AS PURSE-SNATCHERS

Charged with numerous instances of purse-snatching, Ed and Shade Whitefield, negroes, of 17 Roach street, were held for robbery Wednesday after a preliminary hearing before Recorder Johnson. Bonds of $3,000 each were deposited for their appearance.

SHIPMAN COMPLETES Y. W. BIBLE COURSE

Dr. F. R. Shipman, president of the Atlanta Theological seminary, will deliver the last talk of his Y. W. C. A. Bible course at "Y" headquarters, Peachtree Arcade, this morning at 11 o'clock. Dr. Shipman's Bible talks are of marked interest to students, teachers and religious workers. All interested in Bible teachings are invited to hear the speaker, especially Christmas shoppers who wish to spend a gainful hour while resting at the "Y." Dr. Shipman's course of lectures have been sponsored by the "Y. W. C. A. religious education committee, of which Mrs. W. A. Albright is chairman.

WILL OPERATE COAL MINES NIGHT AND DAY

Knoxville, Tenn., December 14.—Operating coal mines at night as well as throughout the day, a radical departure from the established custom, has been decided on by the LaFollette Coal & Iron company, and its employees, at LaFollette, Tenn.

This is not only intended to give miners more work, but to reduce the cost of production. L. C. Crewe, president, announced that for a coal mine which a large amount of capital is invested, to operate only eight hours in 24 appears to be poor economy from every standpoint, and LaFollette miners had also called attention to the fact.

BATTLE OF WORDS CLOSES IN DELAY

session, it is understood, Sean Milroy began to protest at Valera's repeated repetitions of his argument that the negotiators had no powers to sign, saying "we are not schoolboys."

Miss Mary MacSwiney, sister of the lord mayor of Cork, who died from self-inflicted starvation, is one of those who demands a republic.

The latest estimate of the vote is that the treaty will be favored by approximately 70 to 47. It is understood that Cork is 5 to 4 for De Valera; Tipperary solidly back of De Valera; Clare about evenly balanced; Galway 5 to 2 for Griffith; Kerry a slight majority for Griffith; and Dublin practically 5 to 1 for Griffith and ratification.

Characteristic attempts by the public to influence the members in their action were made outside the building. Posters urging rejection of the treaty were torn down by members of the Irish republican party, but when a woman dressed in mourning raised a black-bordered republican flag on a trolley pole in front of the building and defied the soldiers to tear it down, it remained there.

Youngsters Paint Fence.
A band of youngsters painted the fence surrounding the university building with the legend "Down free state! Up republic!" and this remained in view at least for a few hours.

"Some men call me traitor," Michael Collins, adjutant general of the republican army and signer of the treaty, cried in anger early in the session, when De Valera declared the delegates had exceeded their instructions. "I will meet them anywhere and any time, as I have in the past!"

The signing of the treaty took the stand throughout the debate that in affixing their names to the document in London they were not binding the country to accept the terms, unless the draft clearly raised the agreement in view at least for a few hours.

This, they pointed out, was exactly what had been done by the British delegation.

ULSTER WILL NOT ENTER FREE STATE.
London, December 14.—The Ulster cabinet's reply to Prime Minister Lloyd-George's letter of December 5, which will be made public officially tomorrow definitely rejects the invitation to join the Irish free state. It protests against Ulster's interests being involved in the Irish settlement without Ulster's being consulted.

GEORGE HANDLES TREATY SKILFULLY.

BY RALPH H. TURNER,
United News Staff Correspondent.
London, December 14.—Launching the Irish treaty on its way through the British parliament—a passage that will be somewhat stormy, but which will fall far short of wrecking the agreement—Lloyd-George skilfully defended the instrument of peace in the eyes of Britishers and at the same time painted it in attractive colors for the Irish audience.

His address to the house of commons, where a brilliant assembly of diplomats and members of the aristocracy marked the momentous opening of parliament by King George, was a cleverly constructed and logical appeal for ratification. It may have lacked some of the usual Lloyd-George appeal, but it lacked none of the premier's dexterity. His task was particularly difficult because at the very moment he began his defense of the treaty, the document was being made the subject of bitter recrimination in Dublin.

Elucidating the treaty point by point, the premier laid great stress upon the fact that Great Britain has gained every desired element safeguarding the empire, including the Irish oath of allegiance to the king, and control of the island's naval and military defenses, while Ireland has been made "the ruler of her own hearth."

Sees Nothing Better.
"I never like to be too confident when I am talking about Ireland," he added in qualification. "I hesitate to say that everything has been settled. That has been said too often in the past. But I can see nothing better."

In the early stages of his speech, Lloyd-George addressed the dominions quite freely as Ireland, pointing out that the influence of British dominions within the past four years has wholly revolutionized the empire's foreign policy. He agreed that England must continue to consult her dominions, and that her present policies were based on decisions arrived at by the imperial conference.

"It would be inconceivable," he declared, "that there should have been no representatives from the dominions at Versailles and at Washington. And if an attempt ever were made to encroach upon the rights of the Irish Free State every dominion would feel that her own rights were being threatened. That is enough to guarantee that Ireland's interests will be recognized and respected."

The premier explained, nevertheless, that Ireland's proximity to England, her "deep-rooted religious animosities," and other circumstances had created difficulties far different from the usual dominion difficulties. An unlimited Irish army or navy, for instance, he cited "lunacy." Ireland could raise an army of half a million men, and "mine layers and submarines do not cost much."

Leads in Disarmament.
The restrictions that had been made, therefore, were necessary not only for the safety of the empire, but because "Great Britain has taken a leading part in land disarmament and a leading part in sea disarmament."

Lloyd-George admitted that he had assented reluctantly to the tariff clauses in the treaty, intimating that he had agreed only at the last minute because Ireland was more dependent upon Great Britain than England upon Ireland.

At this point, gripping the treaty in a clenched hand and waving it in the air, the premier cried: "Here it is! If the treaty is broken, I shall face the situation."

A subtle compliment to the Irish people was injected here, when the premier referred to their "loyalty" which, he declared, would be the more pronounced now "when the Irish people will be free to work out their own national destiny in their own land."

"What nation ever before showed such faith in its principles?" he asked his audience.

Lloyd-George continued that he was convinced Ireland would do her utmost to present a good government which would justify the British government's offer.

Still Faces Danger.
"The British Empire will still face dangers," he said, "and when they come, Ireland will be there, by our side."

In another paragraph the premier touched upon England's relations with America, declaring that satisfactory understanding between the two nations was possible only unless there were an Irish settlement.

Lloyd-George denied that an earlier settlement would have been possible. The conference, he argued, could not have been held a year ago, because at that time the opinion of neither side was ripe.

PLANS FOR ROAD BONDS ARE MADE

Howard Speaks.
In nominating Mr. Moore, chairman of the meeting Wednesday, Judge G. H. Howard, attorney of the state highway department, sounded the keynote campaign and urged the people to build for the future. He declared that in his opinion the meeting Wednesday was the most important in the history of Georgia in the past 50 years. He called attention to the speech of Guy McLenion, secretary of state of Georgia, which he delivered at Brunswick several weeks ago, in which the official appealed to the citizens to build a suitable outlet to the sea where surplus products may be marketed and turned into money. Judge Howard stated that good roads are necessary to get products to any market.

"In order for Georgia to get $2,000,000 federal aid which will be available in 1922," he asserted, "the state must match dollar for dollar. Under the present system, the only way the state can get the federal money is for the counties to put up the money."

"The federal government decided that it is too much trouble to deal with 100 counties in this state and a similar number in every state in the union, so it allowed, by a recent act, the states are given a certain time in which to amend their respective constitutions, making it possible for the federal government to deal directly with the state highway departments, which in turn, are authorized to construct and maintain roads throughout the state."

"The federal aid fund is likely to increase from year to year, thereby giving the state more money from this source, and with the network of roads once built, it will not be necessary to have a large sum to maintain the roads."

Attention to Act.
Judge Howard again called attention to the fact that in his opinion, certain articles of the act of 1919, which created the highway department, are unconstitutional. He said that that portion of the act which authorized the state to issue refunding certificates to counties where local bond issues had passed and where the money had been used in construction of any designated state highway was null and void because the constitution specifically states that the state cannot issue bonds to suppress insurrection and to repel invasion.

He pointed out that the state highway department through a bond issue could do what the state cannot do, and urged the passage of two constitutional amendments by the legislature, which will put the matter up to the people of the state. He declared that the issue was acute to be authorized if the people were convinced that the state highway department was acting in good faith and would refund the money to counties that had already passed bonds.

Judge Howard advised the floating of the bonds annually over a period of ten years. "People will never vote to tax property or incomes to retire a bond issue, especially when some of the counties are now in as bad condition as they were in 1865 and it is not the plan of those present today to ask for the increase of any tax or the levying of any new tax."

"When the legislature met in 1921, it was faced with meeting a deficit of $3,000,000. They levied a gasoline tax of 1 cent per gallon. This tax will put into the general treasury $1,750,000 this year. At the present time it is not necessary to divert this fund, as the question of a bond issue can not be passed on by the legislature, submitted to the people at a general election in November of 1922, if passed by the general assembly in the summer of 1922, and be sold before the spring of 1923. If the gas tax is to be a permanent tax I believe that the people who pay it will demand that it be spent on the construction and maintenance of roads."

In conclusion, Judge Howard declared that the women in Georgia would be a great factor in putting over the bonds, as they realized what had been accomplished by the roads already built; namely, the great consolidated county schools of today.

H. H. Dean, of Gainesville, declared that the people of north Georgia were greatly interested in the development of roads in the state, and that most all of the people who had moved into the town from the country in the past ten years did so on account of bad roads.

Charles L. Davis, of Marietta, county, former chairman of State Association of County Commissioners, stated the time had come to show the necessity of carrying on the good work already started in Georgia. He made the assertion that Georgia had made more progress since the creation of the highway commission than any other state in the union.

A. J. Lippett, of Albany, Dougherty county, chairman of the State Association of Commissioners, declared that the federal government had made the state of Georgia a business proposition, and it was clearly a question of whether the state would take it up or let it pass. He pledged the support of south Georgia to the movement.

George H. Carswell, representative in the general assembly from Wilkinson county, told the audience: "You have got to make the common people, one of whom I am, see that they are going to get a road to a town, and that they pay enough federal tax for the government to give them something back."

"It is no use to go into a discussion of the need of good roads," he said. "That question is in the same class with the discussion of a woman's virtue and prohibition."

He expressed the belief that the legislature would pass the two necessary amendments to the constitution authorizing the bond issue.

Prizes Department.
Former Barrett, of Stephens county, pointed out that even now some strong influences in Georgia are against the bond issue. He declared that the state highway department deserved a lot of credit for what it had already accomplished.

O. A. Mann, representative from Glenn county, stated that the citizens of a county were in favor of the roads, as they had passed overwhelming a bond issue in a recent election.

Paul S. Thridge, of Atlanta, asked permission to state that Mrs. P. B. Thornton, head of the woman's division of the Bankers' Highway association, had pledged the support of the women of Georgia in this effort to take "antagonism of federal aid to construct roads."

Claude Smith, of Atlanta, then presented the name of Mr. Daniel for permanent chairman. The election was unanimous, as was the election of vice presidents and members of the executive board.

To Announce Committee.

In announcing the chairmanship, Mr. Daniel expressed his appreciation of the honor conferred upon him and declared that he would bend every effort to see that the organization of which he was the head educated the people of the state to the need of bonds.

A vote of thanks was voted the city of Macon, the Macon Chamber of Commerce, and Rogers Miller, the secretary of that body, for the many courtesies extended the visitors while in Macon.

Mr. Daniel stated that he would within the next few days. The meeting adjourned, to meet at the call of the chairman.

WILKINSON COUNTY FORMS ASSOCIATION.

Irwinton, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—Citizens of Wilkinson county held a meeting at the courthouse in Irwinton Tuesday afternoon and organized under the name of the Wilkinson County Highway association.

George H. Carswell, of Irwinton, who has been prominently identified with public affairs of this county for a number of years, as elected chairman; J. E. Dean, of Gordon, vice chairman; H. E. Stephens, of Toombsboro, secretary-treasurer.

The purpose of the organization is to work for the betterment of the roads of the county and to co-operate with state and federal authorities in the building of permanent highways.

It is also proposed to co-operate with the other counties along the line of the proposed Bee-Line highway, which would cut about thirty miles shorter the route from Macon to Savannah, and with this in view a committee has been appointed to confer with the other counties on this proposition and report at the next meeting of the association.

The people of this county are becoming enthused on the subject of good roads, and now that they have organized it is expected that Wilkinson county will soon come to the front in the matter of good roads.

PLANS TO CELEBRATE FREEDOM OF IRELAND

Plans for the proper celebration of the freedom of Ireland and a dinner and dance at a later date for the American friends of Irish freedom, who have assisted the cause, were discussed at a meeting held Wednesday night in Carnegie library.

The meeting was called by James A. Harvey, secretary of the Atlanta branch of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic.

MAY DISINTER BODY OF DANIEL SLAIN BY PAL

Little Rock, Ark., December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—The body of Tom Slaughter, slain desperado, buried in a local cemetery in the presence of thousands of curious spectators this afternoon, may be disinterred.

Governor T. C. McRae late last night announced receipt of a long distance telephone message from G. D. O'Brien, of Dallas, Texas, brother-in-law of the bandit, protesting against the funeral service held today, and denouncing a woman known here as Mrs. Myrtle Slaughter, supposed to be the bandit's widow, of El Dorado, Arkansas.

The governor said that O'Brien declared the woman posing here as the widow was not Slaughter's wife, and announced the intention of coming to Arkansas and claiming the body. O'Brien, it is said, had wired the Saline county authorities to hold the body there, but when the supposed Mrs. Slaughter appeared and asked that the funeral be held here, her wishes were granted.

Annual Meeting of Dixie Major Moguls Starts at Memphis Today

Limit on Eligibility of Players Is One of Big Features to Be Considered.

BY HERBERT CALDWELL. Memphis, Tenn., December 14.—(Special.)—Southern league magnates will gather here tomorrow for a two days' pow-wow and the indications are that there will be sufficient power to consummate the greater part of two days and maybe a portion of a night. It is the occasion for the annual meeting of the league and, carrying out custom, will be held in the home of the newest champions, the Chattanooga Braves.

The meeting, which will be executive, will be held in the office of Southern league headquarters, in the Union & Planters Bank building. The magnates will sit in for the first business at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. John D. Martin, for the third consecutive year, will preside over the meeting in the capacity of league president. A feature that will be absent from the annual meeting this year will be the election of a president. Martin is just completing his first year of a three-year term, to which he was elected in December, 1920.

During the absence of election of a president, the indication is that the meeting will be free from any political atmosphere, although there are a number of matters to come up, upon which the various club presidents are known to be divided in opinion. Two of the directors will be attending their first annual Southern league meeting. They are R. M. Weinacker, of Mobile, and R. J. Spiller, of Atlanta. Spiller was elected president of the Atlanta club last summer, and Weinacker just recently succeeded John D. Logan.

Rest of Program. Routine business such as the adoption of player and salary limit, the opening and closing dates of playing season, and allotment of holiday dates will consume considerable time, but there are other subjects certain to come up that will probably take some time for settlement. There is no indication of any radical changes in the playing rules. President Martin's report will show the league in better financial condition than since its organization in 1901.

Starting the 1919 season practically on the proverbial "white check," the association has prospered under the guidance of President Martin. Following the reading of the president's report, the league chief will appoint his various committees. Among these is the schedule committee, which will meet later and draw up the tentative dates for next season. Most important among the things that will likely come up early during the meeting is the task of devising some ways and means to render financial assistance to the smaller cities, and assure them against a financial loss this season. It is known that Mobile and Chattanooga are coming to the meeting seeking assistance. This subject has been under consideration for some time, and the various "big brothers" of the league have advanced their ideas of helping these two clubs, but what assistance and how they are going to render it will likely bring about some lively debating.

A rule that is certain to be repealed is the one that prohibits a player from remaining with the same club more than three years. This is the third year that the rule has been in effect, and it will likely be repealed without any opposition.

Won't Touch Rookies. It is hardly likely that the rookie rule will be tampered with. Each club is now restricted to nine players and have a clause in their contract, every player who came into the league a "so-called rookie" is still a rookie, and will remain so under the present rule. Whether the salary and player limit will undergo any changes is not known, and has not been intimated. Tom Watkins, president of the Memphis club, and who, incidentally, is a man of few motions at baseball meetings, is going to wage a fight for one thing at the meeting. That is the abolition of the rule prohibiting a manager from going on the side lines unless he signs a player contract. Spence Abbott, of the champion Chickasaw, is not a playing manager, but

J. HEINNEMAN IS IN AGAIN

BY GEORGE H. BUTLER. Chattanooga, Tenn., December 14.—(Special.)—The proposal of President Heinemann, of New Orleans, to pool all gate receipts if possible, and if not those on holidays, Saturdays and Sundays, will be the most important matter to come before the annual Southern league meeting at Memphis Thursday, in the opinion of President Strang Nicklin, of the Lookouts.

The plan of President Heinemann is to pool the net profits of all eight clubs in the league and then split the total eight ways. In this manner Chattanooga, Mobile and Nashville would enjoy just as great a prosperity, comparatively speaking, as Atlanta, Birmingham and Memphis.

All Teams Equal. This plan would, of course, make all clubs equal on paper and would make the winning of pennants a question of superior selection of athletes and management. There is much to be said for and against the plan.

President Nicklin does not believe that the policy of retrenchment agreed on at Buffalo will affect either player or salary limits in the Southern, as they are already within the figures agreed upon for Class A clubs. The local magnate also expects no fight to be made on President Martin as a result of the row over the now famous Memphis-Nashville exhibition of last season which was asserted by Atlanta and Mobile to have been a violation of the league constitution.

Likes Navia. President Nicklin stated he was greatly impressed with President Navia, of Detroit, with whom he had a long conference while in the east, in regard to the working agreement between the Lookouts and Tigers. The Detroit magnate will aid Chattanooga in every way possible.

President Nicklin is giving his catching department considerable thought and attention just now. Spencer, of Detroit, is being considered as a possibility and also Gabby Street. It seems a safe bet, however, that Doc Neiderkorn will be back in harness when the season opens.

LEONARD WILL NOT FIGHT FOR RICKARD

New York, December 14.—Benny Leonard, lightweight boxing champion, will not fight for Tex Rickard, "even if he were willing to give the champion all the receipts," Billy Gibson, Leonard's manager, declared tonight. Gibson's statement was in reply to a published announcement that Rickard would offer Leonard 50 per cent of receipts for a bout between the two fighters, scheduled for Friday night.

Gibson declared that Leonard "will defend his title at the stipulated lightweight limit, 135 pounds, at 2 p. m. for any promoter or organization in the United States, but not for Tex Rickard."

Last season signed a player contract so that he could coach his team from the lines. The player limit is 15, including a player manager. Watkins was strongly against the rule last season. He will undoubtedly have some opposition, but states he is going to battle for his point.

The annual meeting is sort of an "open to all" game for motions, etc., and some of the directors have had something up their sleeves that is not expected. However, the indication is that if the magnates confine themselves strictly to business, they will have all they can attend to tomorrow afternoon, night and Friday. There are no arrivals up to tonight. Tom Watkins and Spence Abbott, of the Memphis club, are already here. The others are expected tomorrow morning.

TIGER MIGHT PLAY CRIMSON

Cambridge, Mass., December 14. (Special.)—By the time of the Harvard football dinner in less than a week, at which time the golden trophies will be awarded this year's players, it is hoped that the 1922 gridiron schedule will be completed. While word is being awaited from Pennsylvania regarding an October date, more interest centers with the open date of November 4, which it is hoped will be filled by the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. Harvard is anxious to secure the University of the South for the opening game if satisfactory arrangements can be made. While the matter has been hanging fire for some time, the Harvard authorities hope to make some definite arrangements within the next week.

Sewanee Preferred. The University of North Carolina is exerting considerable pressure to secure the game for some time, the Harvard authorities hope to make some definite arrangements within the next week.

Boston University also desires to be selected for this same date and the pressure being brought to bear from this source is not to be overlooked. The argument advanced by the local university calls for home preference. At Harvard certain factions agree that Boston University should be chosen and have used their every effort to have the athletic committee take a like view. The committee, however, will choose a southern university if it is possible to do so.

Considerable interest has been taken and much benefit derived from the southern games of late, whereas, it is believed that a Harvard-Boston university date would be of little interest or benefit to either here.

As the matter stands now, there is little or no question but what either Sewanee or North Carolina will secure the opening date. It all rests with the matter of satisfactory arrangements.

A. O. ORTH OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS

Lynchburg, Va., December 14.—(Special.)—Allen O. Orth, son of Al Orth, the well-known baseball umpire, who is a student at Boston Tech, is being operated upon for appendicitis in a Boston hospital for appendicitis. Reports from the hospital indicate his condition now is very favorable.

Mrs. Anna Armstrong, of Camden, N. J., recently elected supreme commander of the Shepherds of Bethlehem, is the third woman to hold that office since the order was founded.

SPORTS through Edgren's EYES

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

That was a funny stunt—calling off the Friedman-Dundee bout in New Jersey because it interfered with the Friedman-Tendler bout in New York a week later. The catch was that the New York boxing commission's rules won't let any boxer battle more than once in eight days.

There may be some question whether or not such a rule could be applied equally to boxer who had fought within eight days in another state and outside the jurisdiction of the New York boxing commission. Probably "big business" would find a way to declare the whole thing unconstitutional, or non compos mentis, or something else of that sort.

The rule isn't so bad. Often in the past boxers have appeared in New York rings when quite unable to do their best work, because they were still stiff or stale from too much recent competition. Eight days, however, is long enough to get over a fight even with Jack Dempsey.

This Is Just Bunk. Of course that Babe Ruth fine and impris— I mean fine and suspension— sensation is waning, but isn't it about time for us to get the true perspective on the thing?

Heedless Ruth went out and played baseball after the season, although he had been notified that a robe of discipline was being played by any baseball player who had taken part in the post-season series.

Ruth thought that rule was unfair, and he'd ignore it. Cobb and other players in his class, who hadn't earned any post-season money, were earning three times as much by playing winter ball. He'd done his duty by his ball club, giving the best he had to win a pennant and the best he had to try for the inter-league championship—blatantly advertised as the "world championship."

go bootlegging for the rest of the year it would have been no business of the league's. He didn't go bootlegging. He simply played some more ball. A healthy and decent pursuit.

Judge Landis slams Ruth a "fine" consisting of the confiscation of over $3,000 that he had earned and had not received. Fining him was easy because his money was in hand.

He also slams Ruth with a suspension lasting so far into the next year's playing season that unless the suspension is a fake one, intended for moral effect and revoked later, it ruins the chance of the Yankees to win another pennant. A plain injustice to the club and the other players.

Then the defenders of organized baseball volubly explain that Judge Wendell put up a remarkably clever bout against the vast superiority of the champion. The best tricks Zbyszko has scored away during the years he has been connected with the mat game proved of little avail at various stages of the encounter.

Wendell Forced Issue. Wendell, in turn, was unable to do much himself when the champion was on the defense, but the challenger was never bashful about forcing the issue. He courted Zbyszko's best holds when he might have stayed out. The crowd expected him to keep clear of anything that even smacked at peril, and the fact that he declined to do it was one of the features of the entertainment.

Torture holds, fortunately, were rare. The crowd appreciated this. For the most part the wrestling was confined to open work, in which strength counted more than the ability to put on punishing holds. Both men are strong. It is probable that the mat game has never known a wrestler as strong as the champion.

Zbyszko Too Strong. Time after time Wendell would work himself into position to accomplish some damage. More than once it appeared that had this challenger been just an ounce heavier or had he possessed just a whisper more of strength, the title would change hands. But always the marvelous power of the champion would be brought into action. His huge muscles would swell, a lurch and the danger was over.

In the opening bill of the show, Ivan Michaloff, who is rapidly becoming a favorite of Atlanta's mat fans, won in straight falls over John Thomas, of Lexington, Ky. The first throw came after 22 minutes, but Thomas weakened quickly after the five-minute intermission, and was conquered in seven minutes in the fall that decided the match.

ZBYSZKO IS EASY VICTOR

It was announced at the Zbyszko-Wendell wrestling match last night that Jim London, the Greek heavyweight champion, would oppose Zbyszko at the Auditorium on December 20, in a handicap affair. The champion must throw London twice in one hour, according to the terms of the contract. This bout, it is believed, will be a big drawing card.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

A minimum amount of hippodroming and a whole lot of hard work marked the victory of Stanislaus Zbyszko, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, over Joe Wendell last night at the Business Men's Athletic club. The champion won in straight falls, the first coming after 37 minutes, while the second was administered in a fraction over 20 minutes.

A double body hold was the weapon used by the grand old man of wrestling in getting the first fall, and a nicely executed "flying mare" was the medium through which Zbyszko won the second fall and sent the spectators home to bed.

Wendell put up a remarkably clever bout against the vast superiority of the champion. The best tricks Zbyszko has scored away during the years he has been connected with the mat game proved of little avail at various stages of the encounter.

Wendell Forced Issue. Wendell, in turn, was unable to do much himself when the champion was on the defense, but the challenger was never bashful about forcing the issue. He courted Zbyszko's best holds when he might have stayed out. The crowd expected him to keep clear of anything that even smacked at peril, and the fact that he declined to do it was one of the features of the entertainment.

St. Louis Browns Give Eight Players for Pitcher Danforth

Miller Huggins Signs Contract to Manage New York Yankees for One Year.

New York, December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Sewer removal of the "stone wall" they declared minor leagues had placed around star players by asking prohibitive prices for them, officials of the National and American leagues, in their respective meetings today, proposed an amendment to the national baseball agreement that would reinstate the draft.

Resolutions to this effect were adopted by unanimous vote in both leagues and submitted to baseball's advisory council for consideration tomorrow during the joint meeting of the majors. The resolution in the National was offered by Garry Herrmann, of the Cincinnati club, as a substitute for the suggestion by Charles H. Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, that the majors refuse to purchase players from any league not subscribing to the draft.

Some Big Deals. The first of a series of baseball trades in the big leagues was announced today when the St. Louis Americans traded eight players for Dave Danforth, star left-handed pitcher of the Columbus team of the American association.

The Browns will give up Emil Palmito, Ray Saunders, William Burwell, Grover Lowmire, all pitchers; Bill Gleason, second baseman, and six other players to be selected by Columbus later.

The Detroit American league club had sold Chick Shotten to the Browns, it was announced. The New York American league club announced that Miller Huggins had signed his name to a one-year manager's contract. The National league, in the final session of its meeting, adopted unanimously a resolution offered by Garry Herrmann, of the Cincinnati club, authorizing President Heydler to place before his colleagues of the advisory council a suggestion for the reinstatement of the draft rule.

This resolution was adopted in place of one offered by Charles H. Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, proposing a boycott insofar as the purchase of players was concerned from all leagues not subscribing to the draft.

Is Frowned Upon. Mr. Ebbets' suggestion, it was said, did not meet with the approval of Commissioner Landis, who saw in its adoption creation of a condition of

CENTRE IS ON S. C. GRID LIST

Columbia, S. C., December 14.—The University of South Carolina completes its 1922 football schedule tonight when negotiations for the Thanksgiving game were closed with Centre college. Nine games are on the schedule and a tenth may be added if the game there may be played six days later. If this effort is successful Carolina will schedule a game for November 18.

The schedules follow: September 30, Erskin at Columbia; October 7, Presbyterian college at Columbia; October 14, North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C.; October 21, Wofford at Columbia; October 28, Clemson at State fair (Columbia); November 4, Furman at Columbia; November 11, Citadel at Orangeburg fair; November 30, Centre at Danville, Ky.

U. OF TENNESSEE MEN MAY GET SWEATERS Knoxville, Tenn., December 14.—(Special.)—University of Tennessee football letter men will probably be awarded sweaters if the plan of officials is carried out. Only 15 men were chosen to wear the letters for the 1921 season, and only 15 sweaters have been made with regard to electing the 1922 captain. Coach Banks and S. R. Rambo have not conferred regarding the date of the banquet. Plans call for election of a captain at the banquet.

outlawry in the minors and dissension in the majors. The advisory council is expected to settle the matter tomorrow. President Hickey, of the American association, and President Stott, of the National association, governing body of all minor league baseball, are minor league members of the council. Mr. Sexton is reported to have said that reinstatement of the draft would be a boon to the minors generally. Mr. Hickey has not expressed his attitude in that regard.

The National league carried President Heydler's suggestions for giving protection to umpires by providing for the appointment of "vigilance cops" to arrest throwers of pop bottles and authorizing the construction in several parks for special exits for "umpires only."

The New York Yankees, announced they had purchased K. Tecarr, left-handed pitcher, from the Jersey City club of the International league. The purchase price was said to be $5,000. Tecarr won twenty games of forty pitched last season.

On the Screen of Sport

by Hugh S. Sullivan

New York wants a winner. The baseball fans of New York are about as hardboiled as any in the country. They will applaud a safe cracker if he can hit a baseball, and they seem to care little about what a man is if he plays good ball. But deep down in their hearts the fans are sound. The passing of George Burns has perhaps raised more real sentimental protest than anything that has happened in New York, not excepting the passing of Larry Doyle.

The New York fans are paying a just tribute to one of the finest characters the sport has produced. The fact that perhaps his legs are not as good as they were—possibly his eyes are not as quick, due to the fact that he has played in the ruinous sun field so many years. But the fans of New York, victory lovers as they are, would root harder for Burns in left field than they will for many a year for any hero who comes along.

There is no sentiment in business or in baseball, of course, but in spite of that claim of owners and managers the fact is that if all sentiment goes out of the game the game itself loses standing. Burns deserves a tribute from the fans. Quiet, gentlemanly, always hustling, always giving the best that was in him to his team, with a name that never has been mentioned in any scandal, in any rowdiness, he honored the game he played and gave to it more than he took out. He won respect, which is finer than applause, and he never alibied. A clean, decent man, on and off the field, a great ball player and a great man—he was as near the type of finest sportsman as baseball produces.

When the fans bid good-bye to "Georgie"—the Georgie they have cheered so long—it will be with sincerity, which will find expression when the roar of welcome greets him on his first return in another uniform.

AS TO JOHNNY RAWLINGS. The deals that the Giants have made probably will relegate Johnny Rawlings to the bench, and perhaps to some other club. Rawlings, the real hero of the last world's series, who did more than any other player, who won that series—and was back to win and then to save the series, seems destined to follow the footsteps of other world's series heroes who flashed, who won for their teams and went out entirely.

There was Eddie Hahn and George Rohe. Hahn saved one series for the White Sox and dropped back to the minors. Rohe, with his sensational hitting, won that series—and was back in the minors the next spring. Of Henriksen with his timely triple broke Mathewson's defense and won a series for the Boston Red Sox, and he, too, disappeared. Another remarkable case was that of Whiteman, who won for the Boston Red Sox against the Cubs, playing the most sensational ball ever seen in any world's series, excepting that of Charlie Herzog for the Giants in that series against the Red Sox. Of all the records of reaching first base and fielding ever made in a series Whiteman holds the palm, and he wound up his remarkable performance with a diving catch of a fly ball which saved a game and almost broke his neck. And the next spring he was back in the sticks.

It seems the fate of these shooting stars to go out quickly. Rawlings is a valuable man, a hustler, always working, and often that type of player is more valuable than a great mechanical player is.

We have had all sorts of reports from the coast about the new players who are coming into the major leagues. The New York Giants' deal by which Jimmy O'Connell, of the San Francisco team, is to join the Giants next fall, calls for an explanation. The scouts tipped this young collegian as a whole of a promising outfielder. Bill Lange, his sponsor, said O'Connell would be one of the best outfielders in the business. He was not, even according to the San Francisco dope, a finished first baseman. Probably the move of the Giants in leaving him on the coast for another season of training as a first baseman is wise. He is said to be a promising prospect who had not proved his value as a first baseman, but he is judged by the best scouts to be another real baseball find.

As to Caveny, the infielder, upon whom the hopes of the Cincinnati Reds are pinned, and who has been touted to the skies, the scouts are very unbelieveing. I am informed that he is "just a ball player," and that he never will be much better. He has been playing several years, seems to be a fairly consistent man, and he improved during the last year, although the scouts say he has not shown anything to justify those high hopes with which the Cincinnati fans try to solace themselves every winter.

Preps Adopt Athletic Schedules At Association's Annual Meet

Two Schools Formally Resign—L. L. Boone Is Elected President for Next Campaign.

BY ROY E. WHITE.

The Atlanta Prep league magnates held one of the best meetings in the history of the league Wednesday night at the Boys' High School building. Several matters of importance came up and were disposed of in a way that was pleasing to every representative.

Boys' High school was represented by H. O. Smith, Bob Wilson and O. K. David. Tech High was represented by "Shorty" Doyal and Tolbert. Professor Rosser and Burbage represented M. A.; Joe Bean represented Marist; Mr. Evans and Boone represented University school. Frank Holt represented Commercial High.

Holt, of Commercial High, made a formal resignation to the league for Commercial High, and Guy Moore, principal of Fulton, and the league to president of the league that Fulton High had officially withdrawn. The directors of the league accepted the resignation with regret, wishing the two schools the best success possible in the new league, and giving them an opportunity to come back in at any time.

Boone, President.

L. L. Boone, of University school, was elected president for the next year, with O. K. David, of Boys' High, secretary and treasurer. It was voted to use the Wilson basketball for the coming season, and the league to furnish two new balls at the league opening. The officials for the coming season are to be David Yates and Frank Holt.

A basketball schedule was adopted, but the dates and playing places were not designated. A committee was appointed to get the Auditorium for the games, and have double headers.

CINCINNATI KNOCKOUT IN AFTER DEHART PETREL SHOW

Pittsburgh, December 14.—(Special.)—Jimmie Dehart, the former Pitt gridiron star, who has been assistant coach of the University of Georgia gridlers for the past two seasons, is now sought by the University of Cincinnati.

Boyd Chambers, physical director at Cincinnati attended the Tom Davies dinner Monday night and had a conference with Dehart.

The latter however has not yet made up his mind what he will do next fall. He has received a very flattering offer from another school with a long term contract and he is thinking seriously before turning it down.

About the whole thing about Jimmie's future which appears certain is that he will coach somewhere in 1922, and that it will not be at Athens.

BUDD - BOORDE BOUT TONIGHT

BY MARVIN MCARTHY.

Birmingham, Ala., December 14.—(Special.)—Battling Budd, Atlanta scrapper, who recently has become recognized as one of the best lightweights in Dixie, will meet Freddie Boorde at the Birmingham Athletic club Thursday night instead of Fearless Ferns, as was previously planned.

Budd should make a popular substitute for Ferns, as his prowess as a scrapper is well known to Birmingham fans, while Ferns has never fought here and consequently something of an unknown quantity to local sports.

Doesn't Matter to Freddie.

Freddie Boorde, who has been fighting in great form lately, stated last night that he would just as soon meet Budd as Ferns.

"It doesn't make any difference to me," he stated, "I have met and defeated both boys, and, on the other hand, have received some pretty severe handings from each in return for my own." So it's a 50-50 proposition with me.

Both Boorde and Budd have won the admiration of local fans by their fighting. Budd is a former champion of the world, while Boorde is one of the best and cleverest lightweights to don the padded mitts in Birmingham.

A good card is being planned for the mid-week entertainment by Tommy Tompkins, who has been placed on the semi-final bout between Claude Wilson and Frankie Jerome, of the navy.

The football schedule of 1922 was also adopted, which will be practically the same as last season. The opening date of basketball was set for January 14.

The league voted unanimously to have the principal of each school submit an eligibility list of basketball players to the league president before the season opens. This applies both in basketball and baseball for next year.

A short discussion was made in reference to each team playing three major sports, namely, baseball, basketball and football, but this discussion was tabled, several representatives being against it.

BANKS WORKS WITH VOLS

Knoxville, Tenn., December 14.—(Special.)—Any sport lovers in Knoxville who have not, in the past, concurred in the opinion that basketball is the most strenuous of the great college sports, should witness the fact at a fast pace under Coach Banks. He sets a fast pace for the members of the squad, but is varying the practice sessions to get the most out of them.

Yesterday afternoon the squad was taught more of the fundamentals of the game. Coach Banks is emphasizing the necessity of getting in a position to shoot and not make a fact at the basket if one has his back towards it. From present prospects the Tennessee quintet this year will be one of the smoothest working machines in the south.

Coach Banks has charge of part of the squad at one end of the Y. M. C. A. court, while Coach Holt is working with the other section. Every man is being given plenty of opportunity to show what he can do in the basketball line. Scrimmages are being held frequently and the substitutions are numerous.

Palmer Jones looks better this year than last year. He is playing the floor better than ever, and is a member of last year's team, which participated in the S. I. A. A. tournament picked up several knucks from that meet.

First Base Open.

Buck Hatcher's place at first remains open. On second and at short, Jimmy Smith, "Monty" Shoaf, and Don Powell will be strong contenders from last year's squad.

"Dode" Lane will covet at third base. "Curry" White is the only regular fly chaser left from last year's crop. In the pitching line "Lefty" Bishop, one of the best southwings in Dixie college circles, will be on tap. Cantwell, the other mainstay from last year, will be back. Bill Hatcher and Braden, two of the subs in 1921, will augment the staff.

Last year about the only fault found with Shields-Watkins diamond was right field. Since that time dirt has been continually dumped in the hollow there and that garden will be much better this year.

As yet the baseball coach has not been selected.

The schedule which Manager Webb has arranged will be one of the strongest of V nine ever played. The home schedule is exceedingly attractive and the best teams in the south will be played.

Donna Hood Found

INSANE BY JURY

Decatur, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—James Donna Hood, deaf-mute, former professional ball player, will spend the rest of his days in Georgia's asylum for the insane at Milledgeville. He was committed there by Judge J. B. Hutcheson in the superior court of DeKalb county yesterday, after the jury trying him on charge of murder, had found that he was insane when he killed his uncle, J. M. Hunt, a deaf-mute of Stone Mountain, and is still insane.

The verdict was returned Wednesday morning after counsel for Donna Hood had pleaded for his life on the ground that he was mentally unbalanced. They asked only that he be sent to the asylum, making no attempt to obtain his liberty.

At the same time Judge Hutcheson committed to the state institution, Harry Anthony, a negro maniac, who was captured in the woods near Decatur by Sheriff J. A. McCurdy and Deputy Alonzo Robinson, Tuesday night. The negro put up a desperate fight when the officers approached him. He had practically torn every shred of clothing from his body and was making the night hideous with his cries when the officers arrived.

Program Will Be All That Theatergoers Could Ask, Declares Manager.

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

How many bookies the new will assure the Atlanta theatergoing public of entertainment in keeping with the joyful spirit of the Yuletide were closed yesterday as the result of one of the most remarkable feats of time-beating in the annals of rapid transit, all performed by Lewis Hasse, manager of the Atlanta theater.

Here's the story.

Later Saturday afternoon the world looked dark and gloomy for Manager Hasse. Shows were being halted off the road. Cancellation had followed cancellation. To all intents and purposes, Atlanta would have to confine its holiday entertainment to vaudeville, the movies, kissing under the mistletoe, popping firecrackers, consuming fruit cake, indulging in egg-nog, and similar activities traditional to the season.

No Show in Sight.

There wasn't a show in sight. Wherever, Manager Hasse bestirred himself.

He put a couple of collars and a shirt or two in a hasty bag, got out an overcoat, suitable for northern climates, and caught a midnight train for New York.

He arrived there at 6 o'clock in the morning, promptly laid siege to the offices of Klaw & Erlanger, stated Atlanta's plight in piteous terms, got what he was looking for and more and at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning was rolling back to Atlanta.

And here's what he brought back.

Christmas week, "Irene," with Irene Dunn, who played the part originally in New York, and a better company than that one that made "Irene" the outstanding hit of last season.

"The Broadway Whirl," with Blanche Ring, Winona Winter, Charlie Winninger, Jay Gould and the snappiest, prettiest chorus that has adorned an Atlanta stage for many a day.

Two Fine Attractions.

"I believe," said Mr. Hasse Wednesday night, "that I have just the type of entertainment that Atlanta will appreciate for its holiday amusement. I know that we didn't get nearly enough of 'Irene' last season, and I know that the three-day stop of 'The Broadway Whirl' wasn't nearly long enough this year."

"And, as a result of my flying trip, I believe that the entire season will be up to the fine standard we have set so far this year—and this despite the fact that less stuff is being put on the road this year than ever before in the theatrical business."

"Following 'The Broadway Whirl,' we will have Madge Kennedy in person in a delicious little comedy called 'Cornered.' Then there will be a splendid musical comedy that is highly recommended, 'The Right Girl.' This will be followed by the same Golden production of 'Three Wise Fools' that we had last year."

"Succeeding these will bring in 'Dear Me,' with the original New York cast, including Hale Hamilton and Grace Lorne, the DeWolf Hopper company of its revival of 'Emmie' and Nance O'Neill in 'The Passion Flower.'"

"Somewhere along there we will have the O'Brien and Lassies White minstrels, and several other attractions are being offered us that will carry us far into the spring."

Fire at Rome.

Rome, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—A fire in the dry goods store of John L. Craton, on Lower Broad street, at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, caused several thousands dollars' damage. The fire started in the second story of the building, occupied by Craton, in a place used for storing merchandise, and the cause is presumed to have been a defective fuse. The firemen had to contend with huge volumes of smoke, but did effective work.

Testify in Trial

Welch, W. Va., December 14.—With the widows of 811 Hattfield and Ed Chambers as its star witnesses, the state today completed presentation of its evidence in the trial of C. E. Lively, George "Buster" Pence and William Walters, charged with killing the two Matewan men last August, and criminal court adjourned for the day, at the request of defense attorneys, who will begin tomorrow to bring out their side of the story.

Opportunity to interview the defense witnesses would make it possible to expedite the trial, the attorneys said in asking for the adjournment for this purpose.

Tears and bitter feelings at times crept into the testimony of Mrs. Hattfield and Mrs. Chambers, each of whom told vividly her experiences as her husband was shot down at her side. Each insisted her husband was not armed, and went into details in support of this statement.

Mrs. Hattfield entered the courtroom with the state policeman who has been her constant guard since she came to Welch, and was escorted to the jury room, where she waited until she was called to testify. A touching incident in her examination came when her husband's clothes were introduced as evidence and she pointed out the bullet holes, breaking into tears as she did so. The defense objected to introduction of the clothing, but was overruled and the juryman spent some time in examining the clothes. A few minutes later tears gave way to a momentary flash of a smile when Mrs. Hattfield was asked if she knew Lively. She replied that she did.

In the course of her cross-examination by Joseph M. Sanders, chief of the defense counsel, Mrs. Hattfield injected her opinion that the trip to Welch was "a well-defined plot" to get her husband here to kill him.

Railroad Man Dies.

He put a couple of collars and a shirt or two in a hasty bag, got out an overcoat, suitable for northern climates, and caught a midnight train for New York.

He arrived there at 6 o'clock in the morning, promptly laid siege to the offices of Klaw & Erlanger, stated Atlanta's plight in piteous terms, got what he was looking for and more and at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning was rolling back to Atlanta.

And here's what he brought back.

Christmas week, "Irene," with Irene Dunn, who played the part originally in New York, and a better company than that one that made "Irene" the outstanding hit of last season.

"The Broadway Whirl," with Blanche Ring, Winona Winter, Charlie Winninger, Jay Gould and the snappiest, prettiest chorus that has adorned an Atlanta stage for many a day.

Two Fine Attractions.

"I believe," said Mr. Hasse Wednesday night, "that I have just the type of entertainment that Atlanta will appreciate for its holiday amusement. I know that we didn't get nearly enough of 'Irene' last season, and I know that the three-day stop of 'The Broadway Whirl' wasn't nearly long enough this year."

"And, as a result of my flying trip, I believe that the entire season will be up to the fine standard we have set so far this year—and this despite the fact that less stuff is being put on the road this year than ever before in the theatrical business."

"Following 'The Broadway Whirl,' we will have Madge Kennedy in person in a delicious little comedy called 'Cornered.' Then there will be a splendid musical comedy that is highly recommended, 'The Right Girl.' This will be followed by the same Golden production of 'Three Wise Fools' that we had last year."

"Succeeding these will bring in 'Dear Me,' with the original New York cast, including Hale Hamilton and Grace Lorne, the DeWolf Hopper company of its revival of 'Emmie' and Nance O'Neill in 'The Passion Flower.'"

"Somewhere along there we will have the O'Brien and Lassies White minstrels, and several other attractions are being offered us that will carry us far into the spring."

Fire at Rome.

Rome, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—A fire in the dry goods store of John L. Craton, on Lower Broad street, at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning, caused several thousands dollars' damage. The fire started in the second story of the building, occupied by Craton, in a place used for storing merchandise, and the cause is presumed to have been a defective fuse. The firemen had to contend with huge volumes of smoke, but did effective work.

Testify in Trial

Welch, W. Va., December 14.—With the widows of 811 Hattfield and Ed Chambers as its star witnesses, the state today completed presentation of its evidence in the trial of C. E. Lively, George "Buster" Pence and William Walters, charged with killing the two Matewan men last August, and criminal court adjourned for the day, at the request of defense attorneys, who will begin tomorrow to bring out their side of the story.

Opportunity to interview the defense witnesses would make it possible to expedite the trial, the attorneys said in asking for the adjournment for this purpose.

Tears and bitter feelings at times crept into the testimony of Mrs. Hattfield and Mrs. Chambers, each of whom told vividly her experiences as her husband was shot down at her side. Each insisted her husband was not armed, and went into details in support of this statement.

Mrs. Hattfield entered the courtroom with the state policeman who has been her constant guard since she came to Welch, and was escorted to the jury room, where she waited until she was called to testify. A touching incident in her examination came when her husband's clothes were introduced as evidence and she pointed out the bullet holes, breaking into tears as she did so. The defense objected to introduction of the clothing, but was overruled and the juryman spent some time in examining the clothes. A few minutes later tears gave way to a momentary flash of a smile when Mrs. Hattfield was asked if she knew Lively. She replied that she did.

In the course of her cross-examination by Joseph M. Sanders, chief of the defense counsel, Mrs. Hattfield injected her opinion that the trip to Welch was "a well-defined plot" to get her husband here to kill him.

Railroad Man Dies.

Nashville, Tenn., December 14.—John H. Peebles, 72, for 47 years connected with the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, and formerly superintendent of the Chattanooga division of the system, died here this morning.

SUSPENSION OF RATE REDUCTIONS ARGUED

Program Will Be All That Theatergoers Could Ask, Declares Manager.

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

How many bookies the new will assure the Atlanta theatergoing public of entertainment in keeping with the joyful spirit of the Yuletide were closed yesterday as the result of one of the most remarkable feats of time-beating in the annals of rapid transit, all performed by Lewis Hasse, manager of the Atlanta theater.

Here's the story.

Later Saturday afternoon the world looked dark and gloomy for Manager Hasse. Shows were being halted off the road. Cancellation had followed cancellation. To all intents and purposes, Atlanta would have to confine its holiday entertainment to vaudeville, the movies, kissing under the mistletoe, popping firecrackers, consuming fruit cake, indulging in egg-nog, and similar activities traditional to the season.

No Show in Sight.

There wasn't a show in sight. Wherever, Manager Hasse bestirred himself.

He put a couple of collars and a shirt or two in a hasty bag, got out an overcoat, suitable for northern climates, and caught a midnight train for New York.

He arrived there at 6 o'clock in the morning, promptly laid siege to the offices of Klaw & Erlanger, stated Atlanta's plight in piteous terms, got what he was looking for and more and at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning was rolling back to Atlanta.

FIRST DEFICIENCY BILL IS PASSED

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 14.—Adoption by the senate late today of the conference report on the first deficiency bill sent the measure to the president, the house having adopted the report earlier in the day.

The bill, as agreed to by the conferees and house, carried approximately $100,000,000, of which $60,000,000 is for the veterans' bureau.

The senate amendment providing $1,000,000 for additional hospital facilities for war veterans afflicted with tuberculosis and nervous disorders, was eliminated from the measure by conferees.

The house also cut from $250,000 to $175,000 the senate provision for transcontinental air mail service, but agreed to a senate amendment appropriating $100,000 for the payment of indemnities for tubercular cattle slaughtered by direction of the federal government.

Charges Stupidity.

Elimination by the conferees of an appropriation of $100,000 for the relief of unemployment brought a charge from Senator France, republican, Maryland, that the "stupidity of our government policy" was aggravating rather than relieving the employment situation. Senator France predicted that "by February or March, unless there is complete reversal of the policy, conditions will be so deplorable that they may shake the republic to its foundation."

Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina, took issue with the Maryland senator, with respect to the duties of the government to find jobs for workers, saying that "what is the matter with the country now is that most people are living beyond their means."

Senator Dial declared congress was "kneeling to too many whims" and that there would be no prosperity until congress cut meddling in affairs that are not governmental.

Brands Talk Reactionary.

Sensor Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, breaking into the debate, described Senator Dial's speech as "reactionary and stand-pa... to the last degree." Mr. Ashurst criticized the failure to appropriate for the relief of unemployment and attacked the action by which money was refused for the building of a soldier hospital in Arizona while funds were allowed for the establishment of a government exhibit at an international exposition.

Penalties Failed To Stop Violation Of Laws, Claim

New York, December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Four penitentiary sentences and fines aggregating $125,000, which recently were imposed upon members of the tie combine for violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, did not put a stop to collusive bidding by dealers and manufacturers in the national association. Hyman L. Morse, a Brooklyn builder, testified that in the tie industry there still exists "a combination, wherein when one bidder gets a figure, the others will not even get near it and figure for it."

It was also brought out that William A. Doron and William Chapman, respectively, president and vice president of a local plumbers' union, retained their positions and pay while serving penitentiary sentences this year for coercion, and both actively resumed their posts when released.

PINE MEN PLAN PROMPT ACTION FOR RATE CUTS

Memphis, Tenn., December 14.—Prompt and vigorous action to secure reductions in freight rates on southern pine to relieve southern lumber men of alleged discrimination in transportation charges was authorized, disapproval of proposed free tolls through the Panama canal was expressed and adoption of a tariff policy with respect to proposed national forestry legislation were outstanding developments of the meeting of the board of directors of the Southern Pine Association held here today.

The directors' meeting and a conference on yellow pine grading rules were preliminary to the special meeting of southern pine lumber interests which opens tomorrow, at which an attendance of about 250 yellow pine operators is expected.

Headquarters of railroad freight rates recently put into effect and proposed took up much of the session today. In a resolution the directors authorized the transportation committee of the association to "take any action before the interstate commerce commission which may be necessary to secure such reduction in rates on southern pine to all destinations as may be fair and reasonable, and to demand that there shall be no greater discrimination against southern pine than the parties which existed between competitive rates on June 29, 1918."

Dr. Hermes Mentioned As Next Ambassador Of Germany To U. S.

Paris, December 14.—A dispatch from Berlin today quotes the Zeitung Am Mittag as saying it understands the naming of Dr. Andreas Hermes, the minister of food, as German ambassador at Washington, has been decided upon. The American government, it asserts, has already agreed to accept him as Germany's representative.

NO INFORMATION RECEIVED IN U. S.

Washington, December 14.—State department officials said tonight they had no information as to the intention of Germany to name Dr. Andreas Hermes, the minister of food, as ambassador to the United States as reported in a Berlin dispatch to Paris quoting the Zeitung Am Mittag.

Quartet Who Robbed Home of Proctor Given Long Terms

Cincinnati, December 14.—Peter Voelker, Edward Bell, William and Jonas Shropshire and John D. Stratton, negroes, arrested in connection with the theft of $75,000 worth of jewelry from the residence of William George Proctor, were sentenced today to serve 25 years each in the state penitentiary, the maximum sentence, when they pleaded guilty before Judge John A. Caldwell to the charge of robbery.

Fell Lynching Tree.

Fort Worth, Texas, December 14.—Fort Worth's "lynching tree," to which two persons have been hanged by mobs in the last year, was ordered cut down today by county officials. It was conveniently located on the roadside only a short distance from the county jail.

Accepts Portfolio.

Mexico City, December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—General Enrique Estrada, announcing himself as in accord with President Obregon's agrarian program, has accepted the presidential offer of the portfolio of secretary of agriculture.

WOOD-FORBES REPORT MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMAN.

Washington, December 14.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Disaffection so acute that it may mar the heretofore friendly attitude of the Philippine people toward the United States has followed the publication in the islands of the Wood-Forbes anti-dependence report, according to cable advices received today in Washington by Resident Philippine Commissioners De Veyra and Gabaldon.

"The consensus of opinion of prominent Filipinos is that the people of the Philippines are greatly dissatisfied with the Wood-Forbes report," states one cable received by the commissioners. "The report not only leaves the question of the future relationship of the Philippines unsettled and unsettled, but it fails to outline or recommend any constructive steps in the direction of settling the question."

"Even admitting the report's adverse representation of Filipino progress under the Jones law, which Filipinos consider unjustified, it is felt that the report leaves the real issue untouched and still at stake. Filipinos had hoped for a definite proposal, either one kind or another."

"The Filipino people feel that the great results obtained in self-government disprove beyond a shadow of doubt the conclusions to the contrary. 'The report is very likely to have a far-reaching effect on the future attitude of the Filipinos toward the United States.' Heretofore the Filipinos have gladly acquiesced and given wholehearted co-operation to the American administration of the islands. The Wood-Forbes report, because of its antagonism to early independence, and what is considered too important, its complete silence on the subject of independence at any time, has resulted in a strong reaction. Many are now favoring absolute independence without protection."

Another cable from the Philippines stated that as a result of dissatisfaction with the Wood-Forbes report, a widespread movement has started, having "absolute independence" as its object.

This message reports that Camilo Osias, new president of the National university, in an address before 4,000 students, urged them to work from now on for "independence without any protection," and that he received a tremendous ovation.

Osias is one of the leaders among the younger generation of Filipinos. He was educated in the United States and only recently resigned as assistant director of education in the Philippines.

Harding Approves Design of Medal To Go To Verdun

Washington, December 14.—President Harding today approved the design of the medal which, under the army bill of June 5, 1920, he was authorized to present to the city of Verdun in the name of the congress and people of the United States. John Flanagan, of Newark, N. J., was the artist selected by the commission of fine arts to execute the work.

The medal was cut at the Philadelphia mint. The obverse represents two struggling giants, and the reverse Fort Chasseaux, with the ruins of Verdun, forming the background. The phrase "It Is No Passer" (they shall not pass) is inscribed across one face and "From the people of the United States to the city of Verdun" across the other.

THREE SENTENCED TO ATLANTA PRISON

Philadelphia, December 14.—Convicted of passing a $2 bank note raised to $10, Anthony J. Telensky today was sentenced to serve ten years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. It was one of the heaviest sentences ever imposed for a similar offense.

In the same court, A. Frank Hooven and Andrew Deweler, assistant disbursing officers of the Emergency Fleet Corporation at Hog Island, convicted of embezzling more than $10,000 of government funds, were each sentenced to a year and a day in the Atlanta prison.

Marshal Foch Sails For Home Laden With Gifts

New York, December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Ferdinand Foch and Rene Viviani, warrior and statesman, sailed back to France today with America's cheers following the liner Paris down the harbor.

In the marshal's baggage were six great cases filled with gifts from the people of this continent who thronged to see him during his tour of the United States and Canada, and lend their voices in acclaim of the man who hurled Germany's legions back from the soil of France and won victory in history's greatest conflict.

Since coming to America late in October, Marshal Foch has traveled nearly 15,000 miles, made more than 500 speeches, attended luncheons and banquets, and computed a and has heard the voice of America from upwards of 17,000,000 men and women and children.

He has traveled over the wide expanse of the American continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the inland seas to the Gulf. He had also led the streets of the principal cities of eastern Canada.

Gifts From Everywhere.

Everywhere he had received gifts. Here it was an honorarium of college degree, there a medal of gold or a trinket or two, and yonder a pet or a flow, or maybe just a note token of esteem, admiration and love. He carried the gifts with the feeling of each of his gifts, that his heart was touched, and each one was with him today when he boarded the liner Paris.

His luggage included a score and half of parchments, attesting he had been accorded honorary degrees by American leading universities and colleges. There was one crate full of Montana wildcat of the bottled, spitting, but not very dangerous type, presented by American Legionnaires.

Another crate contained a white Chester pig from Iowa, also a legion gift. There was a whole box of medals and mementos: a golden and jeweled sword and a half dozen or so of loving cups. A union bricklayer's card was to be found, also, in the marshal's possession.

The sword, gift of the French Institute in America, bore the arms of the United States, of France, and of the institute. Encircling the hilt were seven sapphires; the handle was of carved ivory and was inscribed with the marshal's golden monogram.

Chief of Crows.

Crow Indians had dubbed the marshal "Warrior of Warriors," and made him a full-fledged chief. Sioux, once the terrors of the northern plains, gave him a war bonnet, he stowed only upon the bravest of the brave, and called him "Chief Watakepech Wakiya," or "charging thunder."

And out in a little town of Indiana—where the marshal's special train stopped for a few moments—he received a gift from a little woman—a potted geranium.

"Take it," she implored, "and plant it on the grave of my son. He fell near Soissons."

The geranium has been carefully preserved and will be planted by Marshal Foch in his own garden "in honor of the son of the little woman of Indiana."

LAURENS FARMERS ARE DETERMINED TO BEAT WEEVIL

Dublin, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—A fair indication of the spirit of Laurens county farmers in the face of recent depression, that they are determined to pursue agricultural occupations is clearly seen in the work of "turning over" the land in preparation for 1922 crops. Decidedly the largest acreage in many years is already plowed "under," to take the winter rains and to enable the grain and corn and cotton stalks to rot by early spring.

This business of fall plowing has been neglected almost entirely in this section in the past few years, and the fact that acres are being turned at this season naturally attracts some attention.

In this manner it is hoped to kill out many of the eggs of the boll weevil, and the litter of this season will rot and serve as splendid fertilizer for another year.

PERU WILL REJECT PLEBISCITE PROPOSAL

Santiago, Chile, December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—It is considered almost certain in official circles at Lima that the Peruvian government will reject the Chilean proposal to participate in a plebiscite for a dispatch from the Peruvian capital published today by La Nacion. It is expected however, the dispatch says, that Peru's reply will be couched in such language as to leave the door open to further negotiations.

The dispatch says it is understood that Peru's attitude is that the lapse of nearly forty years since the signing of the treaty of Ancon, providing for the holding of such a plebiscite, has invalidated the stipulations of that instrument in so far as they apply to the plebiscite, and that arbitration remains as the sole method of solving the difficulty. It adds that it is probable Peru will insist on the designation of the United States as mediator or arbitrator in the dispute.

Lima, Peru, December 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Arbitration by the United States of the difficulties between Peru and Chile over the provinces of Tacna and Arica was suggested editorially today by La Prensa, the Peruvian government organ. The newspaper characterizes the note of the Chilean government, inviting Peru to hold a plebiscite in these provinces in accordance with the terms of the treaty of Ancon, as "a gross insult, following the deportation of Peruvians from the captured provinces."

Rail Wage Board Clerk Association Is Majority Body

Nashville, Tenn., December 14.—A message from the railway labor board, representatives of which recently heard controversy between the rival clerks' organizations on the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, namely, the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis clerks' association and the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, upholds the contention of the former that it is entitled to recognition as the majority body and as the official multiplicity of the clerical department of the road.

HOW TO GET RID OF COLDS AND CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method That Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There must be readers suffering from chronic catarrh who would like to know how they can stop catching colds after cold, for they must realize that sooner or later this may lead to deafness and other serious troubles.

Dr. Blosser, a respected physician, and for years a specialist in catarrh, is the discoverer of a pleasant, direct method that can be used by man, woman and child. His remedy is made from medicinal herbs, flowers and berries which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette, and inhale the vapor into all the air passages. It contains no cubes, tobacco or habit-forming drugs.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is effective in all forms of colds, catarrh, asthma, catarrhal headache and ear troubles that may lead to deafness. You will breathe better and feel better after using it. Satisfactory results guaranteed. Any well-stocked drug store can supply Dr. Blosser's Remedy.

A trial package, containing eight cigarettes, will be mailed to any sufferer for ten cents (coin or stamps) by The Blosser Co., 40 DT, Atlanta, Ga., to prove their beneficial and pleasant effect.—(adv.)

The Telling Belle Vernon company accepted the proposal of the city council committee, which provided that the company take back 50 per cent of the men immediately, and the others when vacancies occurred. Other provisions of the settlement are that the wage scale will range from $30 to $37.50 per week, the same as offered the men when they quit work, and that union membership will in no way affect employment.

LONG DISTANCE SERVICE IS PROVING INVALUABLE

JAMES C. WILLSON & CO.
Investment Securities, Louisville, Ky.

It would be almost impossible for us to measure in terms of dollars the value of the long distance telephone service.

In the supervision of our branch offices and of our traveling salesmen, and especially in the distribution of new investment offerings where speed and elimination of lost motion is vital, the part played by the long-distance phone is inestimable. Our business covers a number of states and we cannot conceive how its operation could be satisfactorily continued in the absence of the long-distance telephone.

The quality of the service itself, rendered us by your company, is of the highest and we take pleasure in thus evidencing our satisfaction.

Supervises Salesmen By Long Distance

James C. Willson & Company, dealers in investment securities, Louisville, declare it is impossible to measure the value of Long Distance telephone in terms of dollars and cents.

Speed is vital in the distribution of new investment offerings and they are able to make quotations and act quickly by using the telephone.

Branch offices and salesmen are supervised by long-distance telephone, which keeps them in close touch with the plans and purposes of the home office.

There are probably many ways in which you can use Long Distance service to increase your business and reduce your sales cost.

A representative will be sent, on request, to tell you the most successful plans and explain the low station to station rates.

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

The suggestion made to the bond commission, at its meeting

plete survey and map of the sewer system of Atlanta be made in advance of further steps toward the expenditure of that portion of the

lotted to sanitation facilities de-

timely.

be divided into four parts, each to be applied to a specific item of civil development. One part goes to the physical improvements in the school system; another to the waterworks; another to improvements and extension of the city's health and sanitation facilities, and the remaining portion is to be

proposed Spring street viaduct.

authorizing the expenditure of a dollar of the money for the purpose for which it was voted, the authorities responsible for its ad-

employed professional talent to make a complete survey and detailed report as to the requirements in three of the four departments which are to share in the distribution of this money.

The viaduct site already has been surveyed, plans for the struc-

the actual work of construction

available.

An engineer has been employed to make a comprehensive survey of the needs of the waterworks department; and two educational experts of national reputation have just been engaged to make a

tem and its needs, their report to serve as a guide in the expenditure of the bond money apportion-

ments.

be taken to ascertain the exact condition of the sewerage system,

now the money to be devoted to that department can be expended to the best possible advantage.

In a communication to the mayor, the J. B. McCrary company, which has done considerable contract work for the city, says

existing sewer system are incomplete and inaccurate; and it makes the point that the city has from time to time made extensions and improvements to meet immediate needs only, "without any general study and plan to follow for possible and probable expansion."

As subdivisions have been opened up, says the statement—new sewer lines have been built to accommodate that particular subdivision, without regard to possible other adjoining lands that should be included in the same system; and again those subdivisions lines have

ity of these existing lines. Sometimes these private system plans have been filed with the city. Or-provements and the construction

They should employ competent engineering talent to make a thorough study and survey of the system and to render a comprehensive report including recommendations of improvements and extensions necessary to meet the requirements, not of the present only, but for the next twenty-five or fifty years.

YEAR-ROUND CHEER.

Everybody loves to give, for everybody who is normal is sensitive to the human urge to add to the happiness of others.

Especially is this true during

seems, the human senses are more finely attuned than at any other time of the year, and when the spirit of giving is uppermost in the hearts of all.

It is during this season that we give most liberally—give for the pleasure it affords others to receive, and the even greater pleasure that is afforded the giver.

But, unfortunately, there are many who, because of adversity, cannot give.

It is they to whom Christmas brings at most only the pleasure and the comfort and the cheer that goes with receiving the kindly consideration of those more fortunately situated and who can and who do give out of the goodness of generous hearts.

Thus many a forlorn soul is gladdened and cheer is carried into many a cold life, by a Christmas gift.

But in too many instances the joy the recipient feels is ephemeral; and within a few days at most the exhilaration that comes with the gift passes away.

Under the "Ten Opportunities" plan of giving to those who are most worthy to receive, the beneficial effects of giving are distributed throughout the entire year.

This plan is operated each year in Atlanta by the Associated Charities, with the assistance of The Constitution, the idea being simply that the charity organization selects ten families or individuals most in need of assistance and solicits cash donations sufficient to meet the requirements of the beneficiaries throughout the whole year, and sufficient to enable them to again become entirely self-supporting.

Each one of these chosen beneficiaries is listed as an "Opportunity," and each donor is permitted to select the one that he prefers to help by his Christmas contribution.

These "opportunities" are described each day in The Constitution, and the appeal that the Associated Charities is making in their behalf is from the heart to the

Last year ten families—deserving Atlanta families which had

splendid results.

This plan affords the generous and prosperous people of Atlanta

den the hearts of little children and distraught mothers for only a day or a week, but to enliven and

and lasting—into their hearts.

Surely there is not a citizen of Atlanta who is able, but who will avail himself of at least one of these ten golden "Opportunities!"

DR. VAN HOOSE.

In the death of Dr. A. W. Van

Hoose, at Rome, last Sunday, Georgia suffered the loss of one of its most valuable citizens, and one whose influence in behalf of educational and spiritual development

aries of the state in which he was born, in which he spent his life, and in which he died.

A native of Griffin, born in 1860, and a graduate of the University of Georgia and of Mercer,

Dr. Van Hoose early in life dedicated his unusual talents to the cause of education.

He founded Brenau college, at Gainesville, and for twenty-three years he was president of that institution. He also founded the Riverside Military school. Eleven years ago he became president of Shorter college, at Rome, one of the leading educational institutions for women in the south, which position he filled with marked distinction up to the time of his death.

Each of these three institutions stands an enduring monument to his memory.

He was a man of high refinement of character, a scholar of rare attainments, a school and religious executive of marked ability; and above all he possessed a degree of fineness of personality that made friends and admirers of all with whom he came into contact.

Guatemala has "beat us to it" in the matter of getting back to nor-

old-fashioned, pre-war revolution.

brations, don't omit "Fire Preven-

"I sought to find a Christmas toy

To fit in Wee One's nose;

I thought of many things of joy,

Of dolls and baby clothes;

Of building blocks and trains of cars,

Of toys propelled by springs,

Of chocolates and candy bars,

Of beads, trinkets and such things.

With gladness heart a gift of love

I bought for Yuletide tree,

The gift remained in the package.

It was dolly, pink and round.

I laid it with a prayer

Beneath a tiny, new-made mound.

AGRICULTURE QUIZ BOARD REPORTS

Washington, December 14.—Thirteen recommendations, including legislation of co-operative marketing combinations, lowering of freight rates on agricultural products and establishment of agricultural attachés in European capitals, are set forth in a report of the joint congressional commission of agricultural inquiry filed today in the senate.

The report, which is to be followed by three others dealing with other phases of the situation, is confined to the agricultural crisis.

Credit to Turnover.
The commission in its recommendations said provision should be made for credit corresponding to the farmer's turnover and having maturity of from six months to three years, which would enable payment to be made from the proceeds of his farm. The present banking system should be adapted to enable it to furnish credit of this character, the report said, adding that a concrete proposal to carry out this recommendation would be made later.

Another recommendation is that there should be a warehousing system which would provide a uniform liability on the part of the warehouse proprietor and in which the moral and financial hazards would be fully insured.

Among other recommendations are: Extension of the statistical division of the department of agriculture, particularly along the lines of gathering live stock statistics. Development by trade associations of more accurate, uniform and practical grades of agricultural products and standards of containers for them.

Bigger Appropriations.
Increased federal appropriations for the promotion of better book and record keeping of the cost of producing farm products. Provision for an extended and coordinated program of a practical and scientific investigation through state and national departments of agriculture and through agricultural colleges directed toward reducing the hazards of climate and weather conditions and of plant and animal diseases and of insect pests.

More adequate wholesale terminal facilities, particularly for handling of perishable food. Development of better roads to local markets.

Direction of greater effort in the improvement of community life. No specific legislation was recommended by the commission, which has asked for authority until next April 15 to file the three other reports.

Cashier Convicted Of Embezzlement Sent to State Farm

U. H. Patrick, former cashier of the Citizens' Bank of Cochran, who was convicted Tuesday at Cochran on a charge of embezzlement of $7,000 from the bank and given a sentence of from three to five years, was assigned to service at the state penitentiary at Milledgeville Wednesday by the state prison commission.

Patrick, accompanied by an officer and one of his attorneys, Robert W. Barnes, of Macon, was at the office of the prison commission Wednesday to ascertain to what service he would be designated.

It was announced at the prison commission that Patrick's total sentence in the case was from three to five years. It had been reported erroneously from Cochran that the sentence imposed on Patrick aggregated from 22 to 38 years. This mistake grew out of the fact that Patrick had entered a plea of guilty on several indictments in connection with the charges and the judge imposed several sentences on these charges. The sentences, however, were "concurrent sentences" and should not have been added together.

Attorney Barnes declared in Atlanta Wednesday that the publication of the statement that Patrick had to serve from 22 to 38 years was an injustice to the convicted man as well as to the attorneys and the court.

When brought to trial Patrick entered a plea of guilty of embezzling funds from the bank, the total embezzlement being about $130,000. He was convicted on one of the indictments on the embezzlement of $7,000 and the other convictions were on indictments charging various shortages. In these the judge gave "concurrent sentences," which are being served out by the prisoner at the same time he is serving the sentence of from three to five years.

FARES ARE REDUCED FOR XMAS HOLIDAYS

Christmas holiday reductions which will reduce fares for homegoing passengers during the holidays to one and one-half fare for the round trip, with a minimum round-trip fare of $1, were authorized Wednesday by the A. B. & A. railway between all stations lying on its lines.

Holiday fares will go into effect on the Southern Railway system, as announced by Assistant General Passenger Agent J. C. Bean Wednesday. Tickets between all points on the system will be sold at one and one-half fare for a round trip, which was the basis which was in effect prior to the world war. Dates of sale will be December 22 to 25, with a final return limit until January 4, 1922.

815,151 Baptists Now in Georgia; State Leads U. S.

There are 815,151 Baptists in Georgia today, according to a survey of Baptist development in this country since 1821, just completed by Dr. E. P. Aldredge, secretary of survey, statistics and information of the Baptist Sunday school board. Dr. Aldredge finds that there are in the United States today a total of 7,976,563 Baptists, and of this number 6,163,500 reside within the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Georgia leads all other states in the number of Baptists within its territory. In 1821 there were in this state 7 district associations, 201 Baptist churches, 121 ministers and 15,352 members. By that year a total of 1,179 baptisms were reported. In 1921 white Baptists co-operating with the Southern Baptist Convention reported 57 district associations, 2,533 churches, 17,687 baptisms, 348,191 members, 1,990 Sunday schools with an enrollment of 194,468, contributions to home purposes of $2,282,888, and to missions and benevolences $1,070,533, making the total contributions for all purposes last year $3,353,421.

The gain in Baptist strength in Georgia for the century was 2,288 per cent. Today 28.57 per cent of the total population of the state are members of local Baptist churches.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR E. H. THORNTON

Funeral services for Eugene Haskel Thornton, a confederate veteran and a prominent citizen of Atlanta for many years, who died at his home, 85 East Fifth street, at about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Second Baptist church, by Rev. Henry Alford Porter and Rev. Robert H. Lankin. Interment will follow in West View cemetery, with H. M. Patterson as casket bearer.

Mr. Thornton was survived by a son, Eugene Ely Thornton; a daughter, Miss Ella May Thornton; a sister, Mrs. J. W. Bass, and a brother. As Mr. Thornton apparently had been in good health despite his advanced age, his death comes as a shock to his friends.

More than 50 years he had been a resident of Atlanta, and for years was identified prominently with virtually every phase of the city's life. Mr. Thornton was born in Clay county, Georgia, and was a son of Richard Thornton.

He enlisted at the outbreak of the civil war, at the age of 16, and served throughout the war. He was attached to Prudden's battery, of Cockrell's brigade, of Missouri.

In 1871, he came to Atlanta, and two years later married Miss Emma Neal, daughter of the late John Neal. He spent the first years of his business career in the office of the Georgia railway. Later, he engaged in the book business, as a member of the firm of Lynch & Thornton. He was later an official of the Neal Loan and Banking company for 20 years.

In the latter years of his life, he was made secretary of the Confederate Soldiers' home, after he had served as a member of the board of trustees of the home, and as superintendent. Mr. Thornton served several terms as president of the Young Men's Christian association. He also was president of the Atlanta Concert association, later known as the Atlanta Musical Festival association. For 50 years, Mr. Thornton was a member of the Second Baptist church, and was a deacon for 25 years.

GOVERNOR TO DECIDE ON APPEAL BY NEGRO

Governor Hardwick will announce Thursday his decision in the case of Louis Murray, Harris county negro, who is condemned to be hanged Friday following his conviction of killing a white man in a fight at Tip Top. Attorney Ed Wohlwend, of Columbus, and Harding Peavy, of Hamilton, appeared before the governor Wednesday and asked that the death sentence be commuted to life imprisonment. Attorney George Palmer, of Columbus, appeared before the governor and opposed commutation. The state prison commission recently declined to recommend clemency.

JACK LEWIS IS KILLED IN WRECK OF TRAIN

Jack Lewis, former Atlantan and steel worker, was killed Sunday in a train wreck near Kokoma, Ind., according to reports reaching the city Wednesday, and received by Mrs. T. C. Hallbruck, of 365 West Tenth street, with whom he formerly boarded. He was an employee of the Atlantic Steel company while a resident here.

REAL ESTATE BOARD WILL MEET THURSDAY

The last meeting of the Atlanta real estate board for 1921 will be held at 1 o'clock Thursday at the Capital City club. It is probable that the committee on multiple listing will make its report.

FERTILIZER MEN ELECT OFFICERS

Featuring the afternoon session of the sixteenth annual convention of the Southern Fertilizer association, held in the ballroom of the Piedmont hotel Wednesday afternoon, were the addresses of Judge C. G. Wilson, president of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical company, of Richmond, Va., and Charles H. MacDowell, president of the Armour Fertilizer works of Chicago, also head of the National Fertilizer association.

Declaring that business depression throughout the country was the result of a mental state which must be recognized by all, and that with the change of this state of mind prosperity lay "around the corner," Judge Wilson brought a message of optimism and confidence. He also discussed technical matters relative to the fertilizer industry.

A review of the fertilizer situation was presented by Charles H. MacDowell, who touched on water power production of nitrates, with special reference to the proposed Muscle Shoals project.

Officers Are Re-elected.
Election of officers was held for 1922, in which the officers for the past year were re-elected. They are: J. Russell Porter, of Atlanta, president; Porter Fleming, of Augusta, vice president, and E. E. Dallas, of Atlanta, secretary and treasurer.

With approximately 300 delegates from the southern states present, as well as many visitors from the larger fertilizer organizations of the north, the session in the morning began promptly at 10 o'clock, presided over by J. Russell Porter, president of the Porter Fertilizer company, of Atlanta, who paid a high tribute to the work being done by the Southern Fertilizer association in an opening address which sounded the keynote of the convention.

E. E. Dallas, secretary and treasurer of the association, made his financial report at this meeting. An auditing committee, consisting of Porter Fleming, of Augusta, chairman; E. L. Robbins, of Meridian, Miss., and A. C. Read, of Augusta, Ga., was appointed to go over this report.

At the morning session Dr. George A. Maloney, ball-weevil expert of the United States board of entomology, made an address on the effective control of the boll weevil. He declared that with the return of optimism the cotton growers of the south will experience more prosperity during 1922 than has existed since the coming of the boll weevil. Dr. Maloney stated that the solution of the extermination of the weevil is the proper use of calcium arsenate.

Combating Weevil.
More than 75,000 acres of land, he said, were treated by this method last year, and the result was a crop of cotton which showed few if any signs of the boll weevil. Dr. Maloney gave an explanation of how the calcium arsenate is applied. The chemical should be applied every four days for three times. Ordinarily, he said, this would be sufficient to bring about absolute control of the insect. Through the use of this method an increase of 250 to 1,000 pounds of cotton per acre was realized in many of the experiments where calcium arsenate was used.

Dr. Maloney urged the spread of propaganda concerning the effectiveness of calcium arsenate as better agricultural conditions would result, which would mean more orders for the chemical and fertilizer plants.

The following nominating committee members were appointed in the morning, making their report at the afternoon session: John E. Sanford, chairman; A. D. Adair, Jr., E. K. Hiney, J. C. Carroll, Robert S. Cope, C. M. Schultz. This committee prepared the ballot containing the names of those who were voted on in the afternoon session.

The executive and financial committees of the association will meet at 12:30 o'clock Thursday at headquarters of the Southern Fertilizer association.

ELKS' BAZAR SHOWS FINE VAUDEVILLE ACTS

The carnival spirit, intermingled with the Christmas spirit, is all aglow at the Elks' home, 40 East Ellis street, where the big Christmas charity bazar is in full blast. Large crowds are attending each night, and the attractions offered are declared to be well worth a visit.

The committee has arranged a number of good vaudeville stunts, and there are good cabaret singers and dancers, all of which is free to those holding a season 25-cent ticket.

The other attractions—live freaks, opium den representation, and other novelties—are all well patronized. The bazar will continue every evening this week, beginning at 7:30, and the proceeds are to be used for giving a Christmas tree to the poor and for other charities.

Efficiency Expert Gives Talk at Meeting Of Personnel Association

"What the Administrative Employee Desires," was the subject of a talk by Harry A. Hopf, organization counsel for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, at the dinner of the Personnel association, held at the Daffodil tea room at 7 o'clock Wednesday night.

For address Mr. Hopf, who is an efficiency engineer, dealt with the problem of encouraging the employee to take a closer interest in the welfare of his firm, the maintenance of his morale and of his promotion in the business world.

Following his talk, the gathering partook of the nature of an experience meeting, in which numbers of questions relative to the matters which Mr. Hopf discussed were asked him by members present. A great deal of interest was indicated upon the part of all who attended the dinner, friend of Mr. Hopf, Claude M. Fred-

The Philosophy of Brother Ostrich

THERE'S something almost human about the Ostrich. Rather than face the unusual, he buries his head in the sand—thus exposing himself, rather recklessly, to the whims of happenstance.

Isn't that just like the chap who ducks under the sheets the minute the furniture creaks?

Lots of people shut their eyes when they need them most. In the matter of buying something, for instance—the important business of spending hard-earned dollars.

Who gets the most for his money? The man who buys blindly—or the fellow who reads advertising and discovers the thing he really wants and needs?

Who is the most economical housekeeper? The woman who buys haphazard, or the one who reads advertising and puts her household purchasing on a business basis?

There's no denying the great value of advertising to those who read it. It protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products.

Don't be an ostrich.

BEGINS SERVING LIFE SENTENCE

Valdosta, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—Melton Moon left Valdosta this morning in charge of a prison guard, to begin serving his life sentence at the state farm, following his conviction on a charge of killing his mother. The crime was committed in Cook county about two years ago. Moon's arrest soon followed and he was placed in the Lowndes county jail, where he has been since that time.

Moon is a young man, and at the time of his trial it was alleged that he was of unsound mind and killed his mother to obtain possession of a small sum of money. His mental condition was made the subject of much stress at his trial, and in returning a verdict of guilty the jury took into consideration in recommending a life sentence. Motion for a new trial was refused and the case was carried to the higher court. After a long time a decision was handed down, refusing to reopen the case.

A. M. E. CONFERENCE HELD IN COLLEGE PARK

At the annual conference of the A. M. E. church, in session in Lesters chapel, College Park, with Bishop E. G. Richardson presiding, the holy sacrament was administered Wednesday morning by the bishop, assisted by a number of ministers and laymen. The conference was organized as follows:

Rev. J. W. Queen, secretary; Rev. C. W. Adams, treasurer, and Rev. N. J. Crawley, statistician. Committees were also appointed.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Dr. LaPrade, pastor of the M. E. church, south, and by the pastor of A. M. E. church, College Park. Response was made by a member of the conference. The bishop then led in devotional exercises.

The statistical session of the conference was held in the afternoon. Dr. Neel, representing the committee on conservation and advance of the century movement, delivered a sermon, and Dr. J. N. C. Coggins, representing the temperance board, spoke at night.

Atlanta Theatre—Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with Saturday matinee, Walter Hampton in Shakespearean repertoire.

Howard Theatre—All week, Gloria Swanson in "Don't Tell Everything," and other screen features.

(At the Atlanta Theatre.)
Walter Hampton, who will open a brief engagement at the Atlanta theatre tonight, appearing in "Hamlet," holds the modern record for success in that play on Broadway.

Not since Booth has any other actor approached the score of 88 matinee appearances in one season as the mighty Danish prince, such as was scored by Mr. Hampton. The "run" began with a series of special matinees given on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at the theatre.

There were 27 performances allotted to the exclusive use of this suddenly risen genius of the poetic drama. The run at the latter house was continued until the blinding hot days of June forced all but the lightest forms of "girl and music" entertainment to cease operations. In addition there were 27 performances allotted to Chicago, Philadelphia, Brooklyn—with a flying trip to Baltimore and Washington sandwiched in.

Perhaps more extraordinary, though of course, a natural corollary, was the financial success achieved. This was so extraordinary and sensational that The New York Evening Globe was moved to comment editorially, remarking that the fact that at every performance the "standing room only" sign is not used is a record.

The "Merchant of Venice" is on the bill for Saturday matinee, and the engagement will be brought to a close Saturday night. Mr. Hampton, appearing in his first character of Manon in "The Servant in the House."

LETTERS ON KILLING SENT SENATOR WATSON

Athens, Ga., December 14.—(Special.)—The soldier who is alleged to have been shot to death by a Corporal Crawford at Camp Wheeler in June, 1918, because he was too sick to work, was named Holley, and was the son of a Tampa, Fla., contractor, according to a letter received Wednesday by ex-Private Marion J. Wallis, rehabilitation student at the University of Georgia, who was quoted last week by Senator Thomas E. Watson in connection with the alleged killing.

The letter, and another affirming Wallis' statement, which are reproduced here, give further details of the alleged killing of Private Holley, all in corroboration of Mr. Wallis' version of the affair.

Copies of the following letters have been forwarded to Senator Thomas E. Watson for use in connection with the investigation of charges of brutality to soldiers during the war.

Undella, Ga., December 13, 1921. Mr. Wallis,

Dear Sir: I read your statement of Saturday afternoon and I would like to say that you knew what you were talking about in regard to the soldier being shot in the back.

I did not see the act, but the man you spoke of did belong to my company, Company C, One Hundred Sixth Engineers. His name was not Holley but Holley. He was my former sergeant, a good friend of mine, and was in the hospital at Camp Wheeler. His home was in Florida. He was a healthy contractor.

I wrote you these few words to let you know that I am in sympathy with the men that were mistreated in the service. I was never abused myself, but know lots of men that were by actual experience. I served twenty-three months, eleven of which were in France. It was worse there than in the states.

Holley's father would only be too glad to see any soldier who was in any way, when he came up to see after him, that he was treated almost as a dog. Here's hoping you good in your undertakings. Yours truly,

C. B. SIMMONS,
Former Sergeant First-Class Co. C, One Hundred Sixth Engineers.

Dec.

New York, December 14.—An early advance met increased offerings in the cotton market today, but after selling off from 17.45 to 17.15 for January, prices firmed up again, with January selling at 17.50 in the late trading, or 30 points net higher. That delivery closed at 17.48, with the general market closing firm at a net advance of 30 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 10 to 35 points, in response to the continued firmness of Liverpool, and the fact that the market was expected heavy domestic consumption figures from the census bureau. Active months sold about 20 to 25

This appeared sufficient to attract realising or bring out some liquidation of older long lines which had been carried over earlier week declines. The market was seen as selling for southern accounts. Prices eased off in consequence, with December selling down from 17.68 to 17.50, and January 17.62 to 17.50, or about 4 to 7 points net lower during the middle of the day. Business became quieter on this reaction, which was interpreted as indicating an absence of spot pressure in the south, and the market showed increasing strength and activity later in the day. The market closed on a new high ground for the day on buying for Wall street and western account, much of which was attributed to the fact that the market had moved up to 17.70 and March to 17.50. January was relatively firm on the reduction in local stocks, due to the export of 100,000 tons of steel. The market prices were within a point or two of the best on most positions. The census report showed domestic consumption of 1,000,000 tons against 952,712 for November last year.

NEW YORK SPOTS.

HIGHER LEVELS AT NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, December 14.—Larger American consumption during November than expected and rumors of very light ginning during the gin-

the period just ended but cotton to be sold at a higher price. Advances were not well sustained and each upward movement had its reaction, although the down swings were narrow. The trading session, prices being sent to the highest levels of the day where they stood at net advances of 31 to 38 points, or 1.25 to 1.50 cents, with only a slight reaction, with indications that the reaction would have been wider and the trading continued. January contracts closed at 16.72, and the market at 16.72, being the strongest month.

The opening was higher in sympathy with a much better Liverpool than the previous day, and the market was given out during the progress of the first call, showing the demand, the market increasing gains of about a dollar, but the market was not sustained. The figures on consumption of 526,010 bales, compared with 494,745 for October. Most of the trading was not done. For any buying bunched 500-600 bales.

The opening bulge was met by scattered selling; which finally became heavy enough to cause a reaction to levels 5 t 7 points under the close of yesterday, January dropping to 6.32. Much of this selling was due to the quiet in the spot department. Upturns around mid-session were caused by predictions that higher sterling exchange would cause a better demand for spots from Great Britain.
